DEPARTMENT OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1925.

TRAVELLING FELLOWSHIPS.

The International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation have arranged to grant Three Travelling Fellowships in anticipation of the appointment of County Medical Officers of Health under the Local Government Act, 1925.

The Fellowships are open to any duly qualified Medical Practitioner of Irish nationality or parentage who holds a registered or a registrable Diploma or Degree in Sanitary Science, Public Health, or State Medicine.

The Minister for Local Government and Public Health has decided to set up a Committee of Experts to consider the applications and to select the most suitable candidates for those Fellowships. The selected candidates will be required to submit to medical examination, and to give an undertaking to act, if appointed, as County Medical Officer of Health for a period of at least three years, at an initial salary, or combined salaries, of not less than £800 per annum, inclusive, with an allowance for travelling expenses.

Applicants for the Fellowships must furnish particulars of general educational attainments, professional qualifications, and experience in Public Health work, age, state of health, service in the National Army, knowledge of Irish, and testimonials of character.

The candidates who are selected for Travelling Fellowships must be prepared to go to America towards the 1st September, so as to arrive at the beginning of the academic year. The course of studies will occupy a period of about eight months.

A Fellowship provides for the payment of a definite sum monthly, in advance, during the period of study. The usual rate in the United States is $120 a month for an unmarried Fellow. Stipend payments are for the period of actual study, and do not cover the time required for travel from home to place of study and return. The Board pays matriculation, instruction, and other regular University fees; rental of microscopes, lockers, and apparatus, including required deposits and the cost of unusual necessary materials, if approved in advance of their purchase by the officers of the Board. The following are paid for by the Fellow from his monthly stipend:—Textbooks, instruments, laboratory garments, incidental supplies, laboratory breakage, etc. A Fellowship provides for the necessary expenses of travel from the home or previous station of the recipient to his place of study and return.

Forms of Application can be obtained from the Secretary, Department of Local Government and Public Health, Upper Merrion street, Dublin.

Applications can only be entertained on the official forms, and must be lodged with the Secretary not later than the 9th May, 1925.

By Order of the Minister,
E. P. McCARRON,
Secretary.

LIVERPOOL MEAT IMPORTS.

During the past eight days only six steamers landed cattle and fresh meat at Liverpool from overseas ports, and, with the exception of live cattle, there was a large falling off in the imports compared with the preceding six days. The vessels, with their freights, were as follows:—The Colonian, from Portland, Me., with 903 cattle; the Marloch, from St. John, with 2,478 boxes of meat; the Canopic, from Portland, Me., with 185 boxes of pork, 265 boxes of meat and 1,894 quarters of beef; the Surrey, from Australia with 7,231 sheep and lamb carcases, 2,085 bags, etc., of meat and 2,295 quarters of beef; the Baltic, from New York, with 502 packages of pork and 786 boxes of meat, and the Aurania, from New York, with 934 packages of meat—making a total of 903 cattle, 7,231 sheep and lamb carcases, 1,621 packages of pork, 6,591 bags etc., of meat, and 4,189 quarters of beef. Compared with the arrivals of the preceding week, these figures show an increase of 903 cattle, and a decrease of 83,907 sheep and lamb carcases, 6,871 boxes, etc., of pork, 1,963 boxes, etc., of meat, and 31,125 quarters of beef.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

SLIGHT REACTION IN THE FRANC.

Quiet conditions prevailed in Lombard street on Saturday. There was only a small inquiry for money, and loans over the week-end were offered at 3½ to 3¼ per cent., with surplus balances sometimes seeking employment on cheaper terms. Old day-to-day loans and weekly fixtures were renewed at 3¾ per cent. Discount business was practically non est, and Friday's rates were repeated. Fine three months' bills were not better than 4¼ per cent., with 4⅛ per cent. mentioned, and the new Treasuries were more or less nominal at 4¼-4⅛ per cent.

A few buying orders in a small market caused silver prices to harden 1/16d., the spot metal being quoted at 31½d. per ounce, and forward at 31½d.

The foreign exchange market was steady, apart from a slight reaction in the franc, which, after fluctuating between 91.10 and 91.50, closed at 91.40 to the £. Belgian francs weakened in sympathy, and Italian lire were also cheaper.

Sterling on New York was well maintained at 4.78⅛ dollars, while Dutch florins deteriorated to nearly 12.00 to the £. A further sharp improvement took place in Norwegian kronor on the successful loan operation in New York, and Greek drachmae were also dearer, but Spanish pesetas reacted. Argentine exchange was easier, while Rio hardened to 5⅛. In the Eastern market rupees were the turn harder, but Japanese yen suffered a slight relapse. The following are closing quotations:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

FERREIRA DEEP.

Pending the introduction of the Budget, the Inland Revenue authorities are unable to state the rate at which British income tax is to be deducted from the dividend. It will consequently be necessary to defer the posting of the dividend warrants and the payment of Coupon No. 43 attached to share warrants until dates later than those announced in the notice that was issued on March 16th, 1925. A further notice will be issued as soon as possible after the Budget.

RECOVERY IN FRENCH EXCHANGE.

Interest in the foreign exchange market during the past week has been mainly concentrated on the franc, which, after deteriorating to 93.45 on the Ministerial and financial crisis, has since recovered to 91.40 on the formation of a new Cabinet by M. Painlevé and the defeat of the proposed capital levy. The appointment of M. Caillaux as Minister of Finance is also regarded as a hopeful augury for drastic financial reforms. Sterling keeps very steady, fluctuating in the New York exchange during the whole of the present month having been confined between 4.77⅞ and 4.78⅞ dollars. Continental currencies have been approximating nearer to their par values, Norwegian and Danish kronor having appreciated from 30.00 and 26.00 to the £ to 29.37 and 25.88 respectively. Another prominent feature has been the rise in Japanese yen, in spite of a reduction in the discount rate of the Bank of Japan from 8 to 7.3 per cent. This reduction, however, is but an indication of the improving financial conditions in Japan. A slight set-back in the value of Indian rupees may be due to the resumption of gold shipments to the Dependency.

LARGE NITRATE SALES.

A good deal of interest was aroused in the London Nitrate share market when it became known that large sales of the fertiliser had been arranged for the new season. It was stated that 450,000 tons had been sold for 1925-26 (June and July), subject to a later fixing of the price. In one quarter closely identified with the nitrate industry considerable importance was attached to the sale, especially because it was regarded as indicating that merchants had recovered from the sulphate of ammonia scare. A better tone in the share market was anticipated in consequence.

THE OUTLOOK.

So much depends upon the coming Budget that the cautious attitude recently displayed by markets seems likely to be prolonged until an inkling of its main provisions is obtainable. Apart from the prospect of a small reduction of the income tax, British Funds should benefit from the fact that debt maturities this year are relatively small, and consequently the operation of the sinking fund should carry more weight in the market (writes The Sunday Times). Should the prices of the long-dated loans advance appreciably towards a 4 per cent. yield basis it is probable that the opportunity would be taken to provide for another instalment of the redemption of 5 per cent. War Stock. San Paulo Railway Stock yields 5⅞ per cent. net on the basis of the 10 per cent. tax-free dividend paid for the past year, and is a good speculative investment, with the possibility of a higher return. Brazilian Traction earnings have been adversely affected by drought, but the maintenance of the quarterly dividend shows that the situation is not regarded seriously, and for the yield of nearly 8 per cent. the Common Shares are a good risk. Speculation in Courtaulds and Imperial Tobaccos has run rather wild, and, although these two shares have been frequently recommended as investments, we rather distrust the market in view of the ragged bull account that has been built up. On a substantial reaction no doubt both shares would again be worth attention. Meanwhile, British-American Tobaccos have been less vigorously pushed.

THE NEW OIL COMBINE.

It is being suggested in America that the fusion of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana with the Pan-American has produced a new world oil organisation which may even surpass the Royal Dutch-Shell in strength and magnitude, and may rank second only to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. It would appear, however (says The Investor's Chronicle), that the new organisation does not cover world markets quite so completely as the two older undertakings. Details at present disclosed suggest that outside of Britain the Indiana company will not be an important factor in production or marketing in the Old World. In both the Americas its position will be decidedly strong—and it is in North America that most of the world's oil is produced, refined and consumed—and, as it is not controlled by Rockefeller associates to the same degree as most Standard Oil companies, it will now compete as regards marketing in most States of the Union with the other big combinations. The addition to its marketing facilities provided by the Pan-American deal will give it an especially strong position in this respect. Several marketing organisations in Brazil, Argentine, and elsewhere in South America are also brought under its control, while in Britain there are the various oil bunkering stations of the British Mexican Petroleum Company, and the marketing organisation of the Redline Motor Spirit Company, which is described as being interested in the distribution of refined oil products in Europe. As regards production, the Indiana company will be especially powerful in Mexico, and also strong in Venezuela.

MANCHESTER PROVISION MARKET.

(FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

As can only be expected, business after the holidays is exceedingly flat. In bacon quotations for Danish, Swedish and Dutch have been reduced 5s. per cwt., but there is no official change to record in Irish. Smaller arrivals of Danish and Swedish are expected this week, and prices have declined in sympathy with those of London, though on spot it appears to be thought that there was no necessity to make any reduction. So far as butter is concerned the position is decidedly weak, and, with promise of heavier arrivals, it would appear that prices will drop in sympathy with the reduction of 7 kroner in the official quotation, which now stands at 453 kroner per 100 kilos. Lard generally shows a downward tendency. All descriptions of finest cheese rule steady, but demand more or less is retail in character. Eggs continue firm, and, whilst imported remain scarce, English offer in fair quantities.

At Salford Cattle Market on Tuesday the holidays interfered with business, and, while cattle were in fair average supply, sheep were shown in much smaller numbers. Best qualities cleared readily at high prices. At the Manchester Dead Meat Market a good clearance was effected of both beef and mutton, and there was an exceedingly good demand for lamb and other white meat.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL CLIP.

A Reuter's Melbourne message states that the National Council of Wool Selling Brokers has allocated the balance of the bales of the 1924-25 clip, as follows:—New South Wales, 182,500; Victoria, 167,500; Queensland, 138,000; South Australia, 36,500; West Australia, 12,500. Of these quantities 220,000 bales will be disposed of in May, 220,000 in June, and 97,000 in July.

IRISH-AMERICAN OIL COMPANY'S MEETING.

The annual general meeting of the above company was held at the registered offices, 1 and 2 Upper O'Connell street, Dublin. The Chairman of the Board of Directors, Mr. William Halliday, presided, and other directors present were—Mr. Dominick Dolan, Captain R. E. Palmer, Mr. P. J. Lawrence, and Mr. N. G. Worcester. The report and statement of accounts for the year ended 31st December, 1924, were adopted, and show that, after providing for the Preference dividend at the rate of 7½ per cent., less income tax, and for Ordinary dividend at the rate of 15 per cent., free of income tax, a bonus of £6,000 to the employés, an addition of £7,500 to the Pensions and Annuitants' Fund, and setting aside a sum of £10,000 as a reserve fund, the balance of profits carried forward amounts to £14,905, as against £9,013 brought in at the beginning of the year. The balance sheet shows a very strong position, as the liabilities are covered many times over by debts, stocks, cash and investments. The retiring directors were re-elected, as were also the auditors, Messrs. Cooper and Kenny, and a vote of thanks was passed to the managing directors and the staff for their close attention to the interests of the company.

ANOTHER STRONG CLOSING.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Saturday.

Government Bonds irregular; Railroad Bonds firm. The day's sales amounted to 690,000 shares.

MAIZE opened barely steady, ½c. lower to unchanged. Some realising took place early owing to the decline in wheat; then the market reacted on commission house buying, smaller interior receipts, covering of shorts, decreasing stocks, and bull support. Subsequently favourable weather reports caused renewed realising, and the market closed steady, ½c. up to ½c. down. No. 2 mixed, spot, 107½.

PROVISIONS opened steady, and prices improved on covering of shorts and buying by grain people. A reaction set in, however, owing to the easier hog market, a poor cash demand, heavy stocks, and moderate commission house selling; and the market closed easy, with lard 25 to 15 and ribs 12½ to 22½ points down. MISCELLANEOUS.

LEICESTER WOOL.—With half the week spent on holiday, there is not much to report. Orders are slow in coming to hand, and there will not be a real start made till Monday. Conditions promise fairly well, but what is needed is a settled period of fine weather, which would stimulate the spring trade.

Salmon 24d. to 30d., soles 18d. to 30d., slips 15d. to 24d. per lb.; live eels 20/- to 32/-, dead 15/- to 30/- per draft; turbot 16/- to 18/-, brill 14/- to 18/-, plaice 10/- to 15/-, halibut 14/- to 18/-, lemon soles 10/- to 14/-, whitches 6/- to 10/-, cod 3/- to 6/6, hake 7/- to 10/-, skate 4/- to 7/-, haddocks 6/- to 8/- per stone.

TROPICAL PRODUCE MARKET HARDER.

(FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT)

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.

With the Easter holidays out of the way, business in the tropical produce markets has shown a tendency to increase in volume. Prices for the chief commodities have also hardened somewhat, the tone in most sections continuing firm.

Palm oil has met with more demand on the part of home consumers than was the case prior to the holidays, while Northern Continental ports have also carried through a considerable business. America continues to show interest in near-at-hand arrivals. Business has been done in soft oils at £38 15s. per ton for April-June and May-July arrival, but sellers ask for 2s. 6d. more for further business. Lagos has also been in demand, consumers paying £39 2s. 6d., which is 7s. 6d. per ton more than last week. Fine Red Sherbro' afloat offers at £39 5s. Business during the week is estimated at 1,500 tons, with the tone tending dearer. Lagos £39 2s. 6d., Sherbro £39 10s., Opobo £38 7s. 6d., Benin £39 15s., and Niger £41.

The palm kernel section has carried through a steady business, with prices showing fully 8s. 9d. advance on the week. March-May shipment material changed hands in early part of the week at £21 1s. 3d. per ton, but 2s. 6d. more has had to be paid for subsequent business. April-June commands £21 1s. 3d. and May-June £21. Hull consumers have shown more interest, paying £21 3s. 9d. for March-May material, and buyers at anything less. Hamburg, however, has shown but a passing interest.

Copra remains firm in tone, with crushers still finding a scarcity of material afloat. Values to Marseilles are a shade higher, kiln-dried South Sea for March-April shipment being £28 7s. 6d. and F.M. Straits £29. Sun-dried West African rules at £28 15s. Ground nuts have moved but sparingly, with buyers of Nigerians May-June to the North Continent at £23 16s. 3d., and second-hand sellers at 2s. 6d. more money; afloat is offered at £23 18s. 9d., with buyers at 5s. per ton less money. Refined oils show little or no change, while in nut oils Liverpool makes palm kernel offer at £41 10s. per ton for crushed prompt and extracted forward, naked ex mills.

Store hoggets in wool also met an improved demand. Calves—Under six months old £2 10/- to £4 5/-, average £3. INSURANCE LAW.

SHAREHOLDER AND COMPANY'S ASSET.

The House of Lords has decided that "neither a simple creditor nor a shareholder in a company has any insurable interest in a particular asset which the company holds." Judgment to this effect was given last week in the case of G. J. Macaura against the Northern Assurance Company, Limited; the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company, Limited; the Alliance Assurance Company, Limited; the Fine Art and General Insurance Company, Limited; and the Edinburgh Assurance Company, Limited.

Mr. Gerald Joseph Macaura is the owner of the Killymoon estate, in the County of Tyrone, and prior to 30th December, 1919, had cut down a considerable quantity of the timber. On 30th December, 1919, he assigned all the timber on the estate (including the timber which had been cut) to a company known as the Irish-Canadian Saw Mills, Ltd., the amount to be paid by the company for the timber felled and unfelled being £27,000, and a further sum of £15,000 was to be paid by the company to Mr. Macaura for the cost incurred by him in felling the timber that was then down. The total price of £42,000 was to be satisfied by the allotment to Mr. Macaura or his nominees of 42,000 fully paid up £1 shares in the company. These shares were duly allotted, but no other shares were ever issued by the company. The company proceeded with the operations of felling the timber, and by the end of August, 1921, it had all been felled and cut up in the saw mills. In the course of these operations, Mr. Macaura became a creditor of the company for £19,000, and the only other debts owed by the company were trifling in amount. The timber, when cut and sawn, remained lying on the lands of Killymoon.

In August, 1921, and on various dates in January and February, 1922, Mr. Macaura effected in his own name and that of the Bank of Ireland, with the five insurance companies mentioned, policies of insurance against fire on timber and wood goods in the open on the Killymoon estate, not within a hundred yards of any saw mill or any building in which wood-working by power other than wind or water was carried on. On 22nd February, 1922, the greater part of the timber which had been so felled and cut up was destroyed by fire. Mr. Macaura claimed against the several insurance companies upon the policies for the value of the timber so destroyed by fire. On the 30th May, 1922, a letter was written on behalf of all the insurance companies, stating that they must decline to accept liability for the loss of any timber within 100 yards of the saw mill.

Proceedings were then instituted by writs issued against the insurance companies by Mr. Macaura and the Bank of Ireland, claiming the amounts due under policies, and on 21st July, 1922, an order was made by the King's Bench Division of Northern Ireland staying the actions and referring the matters in dispute to arbitration, pursuant to the arbitration clauses contained in each of the said policies.

ARBITRATOR'S DECISION.

On 5th October, 1922, Mr. J. A. Pringle, K.C., was appointed sole Arbitrator by the parties, in pursuance of the provisions of the said arbitration clauses in the policies. On the hearing before the Arbitrator the insurance companies, in addition to other matters, raised the point that Mr. Macaura had not any insurable interest in the timber. All the other matters were decided by the Arbitrator in Mr. Macaura's favour, but he held that Mr. Macaura had not at any time during the currency of the policies any insurable interest in the timber, and at the request of the parties stated a case for the opinion of the Court.

The case was heard by the King's Bench Division of Northern Ireland (the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Brown), and by an order of 29th March, 1923, they affirmed the finding of the Arbitrator, and held that Mr. Macaura had no insurable interest in the timber, and further held that the Arbitrator had jurisdiction to determine whether Mr. Macaura had any insurable interest or not, and that the insurance companies were not precluded from raising this question before the Arbitrator by reason of the fact that they had not raised it before the order of July, 1922 (referring the matter to arbitration) had been made, but had only relied on the matters set out in their letter of 30th May, 1922.

Mr. Macaura and the Bank of Ireland appealed against this order of the King's Bench Division of Northern Ireland, and by an order of the Court of Appeal of Northern Ireland, dated 30th July, 1923, the Court of Appeal (Lord Justice Moore and Lord Justice Andrews) dismissed the appeal, with costs, affirming the decision of the Arbitrator that Mr. Macaura had not any insurable interest in the timber in question.

From this order of the Court of Appeal Mr. Macaura appealed to the House of Lords. The appeal was heard on the 6th and 9th March, 1925, and the House adjourned to consider its judgment.

JUDGMENT.

The House dismissed the appeal with costs. Lord Buckmaster, in delivering judgment, said—It must, in my opinion, be admitted that at first sight the facts suggest that there really was no person other than Macaura who was interested in the preservation of the timber. It is true that the timber was owned by the company, but practically the whole interest in the company was owned by Macaura. He would receive the benefit of any profit, and on him would fall the burden of any loss. But the principles on which the decision of this case rests must be independent of the extent of the interest he held. Macaura could only insure as a creditor or as a shareholder of the company. And if he was not entitled in virtue of either of these rights he can acquire no better position by reason of the fact that he held both characters. As a creditor his position appears to me quite incapable of supporting the claim. If his contention were right it would follow that any person would be at liberty to insure the furniture of his debtor, and no such claim has ever been recognised by the Courts.

Turning now to his position as shareholder, this must be independent of the extent of his share interest. If he were entitled to insure holding all the shares of the company each shareholder would be equally entitled if the shares were all in separate hands. Now no shareholder has any right to any item of property owned by the company, for he has no legal or equitable interest therein. He is entitled to a share of the profits while the company continues to carry on business, and a share in the distribution of the surplus assets when the company is wound up.

I agree with the comment of Lord Justice Andrews on the judgments in Lucena v. Crawford. I find equally with him a difficulty in understanding how a moral certainty can be so defined as to render it an essential part of a definite legal proposition. Upon the merits of this dispute, therefore, Macaura must fail. Neither a simple creditor nor a shareholder in a company has any insurable interest in a particular asset which the company holds.

The remaining contentions can be briefly dealt with. The letter of 30th May created no estoppel, nor did the application to refer to arbitration. Whether the Arbitrator had power without consent to determine the policy was void because of lack of insurable interest does not appear to me to arise. The time for the appellant to take this objection was when the order for reference was made, for one of the allegations in issue was the statement that he possessed an insurable interest; nor is there any substance in the contention that he was led by the insurance companies to believe that the only question to be referred was the construction of the policy. The question, therefore, as to the authority of the Arbitrator to decide the point as to insurable interest is no longer open to the appellant, but if it were I agree with the views expressed upon it by Lord Justice Moore. For these reasons, I am of opinion that this appeal must fail and should be dismissed, with costs.

Lords Sumner and Wrenbury delivered judgments to the same effect, and Lords Atkinson and Phillimore concurred.

Mr. Serjeant Sullivan and Mr. Maurice Healy (instructed by Mr. Herbert Z. Deane, agent for Mr. E. J. Malone, Cookstown) appeared for the appellant.

Sir John Simon, K.C., M.P.; Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C.; Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C.; Mr. J. M. Whitaker, K.C., and Mr. W. Lowry (instructed by Messrs. Bircham and Co., agents for Messrs. Hoey and Denning, Dublin and Belfast) appeared for the respondents (the five insurance companies).

LEINSTER.

Tullamore Town Tenants.—At the annual meeting of the Tullamore Town Tenants' League, Mr. James Lloyd was elected chairman, Mr. M. Behan, vice-chairman, and Mr. P. J. Daly, secretary.

Pike Shot in Lough Ennel.—Two pike, one weighing 19lbs. and the other 25lbs., were shot in Lough Ennel on Friday. Local fishermen consider the destruction of these fish to be of considerable importance to the success of the fishing of the lake.

Housing in Tullamore.—At the Tullamore Town Tenants' meeting on Friday night the chairman (Mr. J. Lloyd) said that houses that were condemned thirty years ago by the medical officer as unfit for human habitation were still being occupied.

King's County Secretaryship.—There is already in the field a large number of candidates for the position of secretary to King's County Council, rendered vacant by the resignation, through ill-health, of Mr. Sean Mahon. As the County Council has been abolished, the duty of electing a secretary is in the hands of the Commissioner in charge of the county administration.

Land Division in Westmeath.—The Gurteen lands near Mullingar have been divided by the inspector of the Irish Land Commission, Mr. C. S. Kettle. The lands, which were bought by the Land Commission from Mr. Robert McKenna, Anneville, Mullingar, contain about 400 Statute acres. The division was into fourteen holdings for landless people and holders of uneconomic farms. The amount of each allotment varied and was between seventeen and thirty-one acres.

Tourist Development.—The Athlone Urban Council have decided to advertise the attractions of the Shannon, Lough Ree, Auburn and Clonmacnoise, with a view to attracting tourists coming to Ireland during the summer.

The Cumann nGaedheal.—Moate, County Westmeath, organised a branch of the Cumann na nGaedheal organisation, electing as president the Ven. Archdeacon Langan, P.P.; Mr. Patrick Fallon, vice-president; Mr. John McCormack, secretary; and Mr. Patrick Ganley, treasurer. A committee, composed of business men of the town, was formed.

Forcible Possession.—At the Bunclody, Co. Wexford, District Court on Saturday John J. Kavanagh, Kilmyshal, was bound over for three years in the sum of £10 on a charge of having taken forcible possession of a shop at Bunclody, the property of Francis Mulrennan. The case was a sequel to the execution of an ejectment decree at the suit of the official assignee in bankruptcy, after which the defendant was stated to have retaken possession.

The Farmers' Union in Kilkenny.—In his annual report to the County Kilkenny Farmers' Union for the year ended 31st December, 1924, Mr. Patrick McGrath, Secretary, states that the position of the branches in Thomastown, Gowran, Tullahern, Paulstown and Piltown and all the south end of the County Kilkenny is wretched, and casts a very grave reflection on the intelligence of the farmers in those districts, considering the complaints of high taxation, maladministration by local bodies and bad prices for farm produce.

Death of Inspector-General Richardson.—Mr. Alexander William Richardson, Inspector-General of Police, Rajputana, India, who died at Mount Aliu on the 14th inst., aged 50 years, was the second son of the late Mr. Nicholas Gosselin Richardson, for many years Secretary of the Ossory Diocesan Council, and nephew of the late Sir William Blunden, Bart., of Castle Blunden, Co. Kilkenny, and of the Ven. Archdeacon Becher, Lorum Rectory, Bagnalstown.

Legacy of £22,000.—A well-known Nenagh lady has come in for a legacy of £22,000 by the death of a relative.

Midwives' Salaries.—At a meeting of the County Board of Health in Nenagh on Friday, the Local Government Department wrote sanctioning a scale of salary of £50, with annual increments to £67, for the midwife of each full-size dispensary district in North Tipperary.

Assault on a R.I.C. Pensioner.—At the Midleton District Court John Savage, of Midleton, was fined 40s. and bound to the peace for having assaulted James Martin, a Royal Irish Constabulary pensioner. It transpired in evidence that defendant had been arrested on one occasion by the complainant while he was a policeman.

Clare Murder Charge.—At the District Court in Ennis Frank Hassett, a farmer, of Dooneen, Moyrisk, Quin, was returned for trial on a charge of the wilful murder of Thomas Clune, aged 72 years, and of being concerned in a conspiracy to murder him. The defence, as outlined in the depositions taken, was that Hassett at the time of the outrage was miles away from the scene and could not possibly have had anything to do with the crime.

Rector's Salary.—The Rev. Mr. McDowell, Rector of Nenagh, wrote for payment of his salary, which was in arrear, to the North Tipperary County Board on Friday. He was appointed Chaplain under Sealed Order of the Local Government Board for the Nenagh Workhouse in the year 1918. It was decided to request the Local Government Department to sanction the Rev. Mr. McDowel's transfer to the County Board of Health.

Newcastle West Agricultural Society.—At the annual meeting of the Newcastle West Agricultural and Industrial Show Society the following officers were unanimously re-elected:—Captain Curling, President; Very Rev. P. Canon Lee, P.P., Vice President; Messrs. W. Phelan, R. Nash, and Captain Curling, Trustees; and Mr. O'Donnell, Secretary. A vote of sympathy with Mr. Dermod O'Brien, D.L., Patron of the Show, was passed on the death of the late Miss Nelly O'Brien.

A Doctor's Claim.—An interesting case was decided at the Clonmel Circuit Court by Judge Sealy, K.C. Dr. Crean, Medical Officer Clonmel Hospital, claimed £11 4s. 6d. pension in connection with his medical appointment. The local authorities favoured the claim, but the Local Government Board would not sanction it. Judge Sealy allowed £5 11s. 3d. pension in respect of the training of nurses.

Milk for Hospitals.—At the District Court in Ennis Mr. Gleeson, in imposing a fine of 10s. and costs on each of two contractors for the supply of milk to the County Home, said that the bad weather may have been largely responsible for the deficiency of fats in the milk. But one defendant admitted that he had poor cows. Any contractor supplying milk to a public institution, and particularly to a hospital as the Home really was, should keep only good cows.

"Good Samaritan" Fined.—A young man named John Dunne was sentenced to one month's imprisonment at the Ennis District Court. He met Mrs. McLoughlin going home from the market with a heavy basket, and he insisted on carrying it for her. When she examined it later she found that he had abstracted a shirt from it, and dropped it behind a wall. She pursued Dunne, and, with the assistance of Thomas Casey, made him hand back the parcel. Mr. Gleeson said that Dunne's conduct was a singular variant of the Good Samaritan.

Charge of Perjury.—Michael Neenan, of Mullagh, has been returned for trial at Ennis on a charge of perjury. The prosecution allege that in December last the accused swore an information that his house had been attacked by two men named Frawley and Sexton, and that the former also fired shots over his head. Those men were arrested, but when they were charged Neenan repudiated his information, and the men were released.

Where Amalgamation Failed.—At the weekly meeting of Youghal Urban Council a public rate of 7s. (as compared with 6s. 2d. last year) was adopted. In addition the domestic water rate is 1s. 10d. as compared with 10d. last year. The Town Clerk said that amalgamation had not been a success. Mr. M. Whelan said that it resulted in an increase of rates and shocking inconvenience and trouble to the poor.

The Entertainments Tax.—At the Limerick City District Court James J. Frely, proprietor of the Abbey Cinema, was prosecuted for failing to comply with the Entertainment Tax in respect of twelve persons who were admitted to a performance and had not the halves of their tickets. The defendant was fined £12 10s. in each of seven cases, two being dismissed and three adjourned.

Hungry Animals.—At the Midleton District Court, Richard Swanton, of Rathcoursey, was fined 40s. and 20s. costs for having caused unnecessary suffering to a horse and two asses by refusing to feed them. A veterinary inspector stated that the horse's condition was awful, and the animal was worth only kennel price—£1. There was a field with plenty of grass attached to the paddock, and, although the fence separating both was low, the horse was so weak that it was unable to jump over it.

A Workhouse Pass Key.—At the meeting of Derry Board of Guardians on Saturday an application was made by one of the nurses for a pass key. The Master objected on the ground that it might lead to irregularities in the house. The matter was referred to the House Committee.

Derry Factory Strike.—The strike of workers employed in Messrs. Bryce and Weston's shirt and collar factory in Derry continues, and there is no sign of a settlement. As a result of the strike, which is over a proposed small reduction in piece rates, about 400 workers have been rendered idle.

Boat's Sixteen Mile Drift.—A pleasure boat belonging to the City of Derry Boating Club, which was swept from its moorings in the river opposite the clubhouse during the recent storm, was found floating in the River Foyle, undamaged, off Redcastle, sixteen miles distant. The boat was returned to the club by the crew of the harbour dredger Hercules.

Condition of Down Roads.—The Down County Surveyor (Mr. J. G. Wilkin), in his half-yearly report to the Moira Rural District Council, stated that the roads in the rural district were generally in a worn condition and were steadily deteriorating. No steam-rolling of any consequence had been done on these roads for a number of years. The material that he was able to have supplied on the roads was inadequate to keep pace with the injury that was being done.

The Rate in Tanderagee.—The Tanderagee (Co. Armagh) Urban Council have adopted a rate of 7s. 6d. in the £ for the ensuing year.

New Police Inspector for Armagh.—District Inspector Attridge, Belfast, has been transferred to Armagh to replace District Inspector Conran, who recently retired on pension.

Third Party Insurance.—The Moira Rural Council and the Tanderagee Urban Council have passed resolutions calling on the Northern Government to introduce legislation making it obligatory on all owners of motor vehicles to produce a third party insurance policy before receiving licences.

Belfast Lecturer's Appointment.—The Rev. Dennis O'Keeffe, M.A., Lecturer on Scholastic Philosophy at Queen's, has been appointed Professor of Ethics and Politics at University College, Dublin.

Belfast Boy Killed.—A thirteen-year-old boy named Charles Tierney, whose parents reside at Willowbank Huts, was on the Falls road, Belfast, near his home, when he was knocked down by a motor lorry. He was badly injured about the head and died in the Royal Victoria Hospital some hours later.

Death of Belfast Teacher.—The death of Mr. William M'Ilroy, a well-known Belfast teacher, has taken place at his residence, 6 Easton Crescent, Belfast. Mr. M'Ilroy was a native of Ballymoney and a brother of the late Judge M'Ilroy, who was Recorder of Belfast for a period. The whole of his life was given to the teaching profession.

Two Referees Collapse.—Mr. William McLean, who was refereeing the Glenavon and Cliftonville football match at Lurgan on Saturday collapsed on the field shortly before half-time, and was assisted to the pavilion. The seizure was not serious. Mr. W. Cowan, the referee of the Ards v. Portadown match, also had a seizure during the game at Newtownards. Mr. Cowan took ill shortly before full-time, and was assisted to the pavilion in a state of collapse. He, however, issued instructions for the teams to be taken off the field.

Ulster Priest Injured.—The Rev. George McKay, P.P., of Carrickfergus, while motor cycling in Co. Down, met with an accident, and received rather severe injuries. When in the vicinity of Newtownards he came from [illegible] a lorry in order to pass it, and collided with a cycle which was stopped on the road, the owner of which was conversing with a friend. The rev. gentleman was thrown violently to the ground, receiving a fractured collar-bone and other injuries. After receiving first aid treatment Father McKay was removed to a nursing home in Belfast, where he is stated to be making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

Maintenance Order.—A maintenance order for the payment of £1 a week was made at the Newtowncunningham District Court against David Mackey, on the application of his wife. He quarrelled with her last March and left her, and she had heard since that he had gone to Canada.

FATHER MATHEW FEIS.

SINGING, DANCING, AND DOMESTIC ARTS.

Saturday's programme at the Father Mathew Feis, Dublin, included competitions for piano and violin, solo and choral singing, dancing, reading, and domestic economy.

In the Junior Choirs section—first on the day's programme—there was only one choir, the Loretto National School, Leeson street (conductor, Miss Nan Mulligan). The test was, "Follow me down to Carlow," and a piece at sight.

The adjudicator, Mr. C. P. FitzGerald, commended the choir on the high standard of excellence attained. They had attained full marks in every department; their "sight" singing was particularly good. They had gained 96 marks out of 100, and he awarded them a first prize.

The Senior Piano contest, for which Chopin's "Polonaise in B flat" (Op. 71, No. 2) was the test, with a piece at sight, brought out sixteen competitors. The prize-winners were:—1st, Miss Ria Leon, 42 Kenilworth square; 2nd, Miss Agnes Fitzgerald, Dominican Convent, Sion Hill, Blackrock; very highly commended, Miss Daisy Morgan, 15 Essex street (recommended for a prize).

Mr. C. P. FitzGerald said that the standard was not so high as in other competitions. None of the competitors seemed to have got the real idea of a "Polonaise." The best attempt was made by the first-prize winner. The sight-reading was fairly good.

OTHER RESULTS.

Miss Evelyn Gleeson, who adjudicated, said that the home-made bread, brown and white, was so excellent as to remind one of the days of long ago in this country. The frosted cakes showed skilful manipulation and refined taste. The fruit and seed cakes were also light and well made.

In the Sewing Classes, special praise should be given to the coats, skirts, and boys' suits. The competition for jumpers would have been more interesting if Irish materials had been chosen and an effort made to give character and originality to the ornament. Tawdry imported braids were out of place at a Feis where Irish work was to be shown. The Patching competition had one outstanding example of good work by the prize winner. The knitting of Miss Quigley was wonderful.

SINGING IN ENGLISH.

The Junior Solo Singing (English) at night time attracted a large audience. There were 17 competitors, and the test pieces were "My Mother Bids me Bind my Hair," key A, and "Dear Harp of my Country," with a sight test. Results:—

YESTERDAY'S CONTESTS.

The last vocal contest, held last night, was for the Father Mathew Trophy (gold cup), for which there were thirteen competitors. The competition is open to prizewinners in any Feis held in Ireland (including the current Father Mathew Feis), and the cup is tenable only for one year. Competitors are required to sing two songs of contrasting character.

The cup was awarded to Miss Lily O'Byrne, 354 North Circular road, and a special second prize, awarded by Miss May Lee, was won by Mr. Denis Cox, 4 Raymond street, South Circular road.

Mr. John Lynskey, 7 Geraldine terrace, Milltown, and Edward Bennett, 39 Nash street, Inchicore, were highly commended.

Mr. Joseph O'Mara, adjudicator, said that the contest had been very interesting. The cup winner was a little artist, but on her and all the other prizewinners he would urge the necessity of realising that they were only on the first step of the ladder, and that they should avoid getting swollen heads. The profession of music was, perhaps, the most difficult of any. It was a hard and a difficult climb, and sometimes when they had climbed three or four, or even five rungs, somebody gave the ladder a shake and they came down again. It was necessary, therefore, to persevere. His parting advice to prizewinners would be to "study and keep on studying."

FANCY DRESS.

In the Fancy Dress contest, the Misses Eileen and Sheila O'Carroll, 54 Botanic avenue, Glasnevin, won the first prize; Miss Marian Meagher, 34 Bath street, Irishtown, the second; and Miss Teresa Dwyer, Holy Faith Convent, Strand street, the third. Miss Muriel O'Connor, 34 Mountjoy square; Miss Ethel Egan, Holy Faith Convent, Clarendon street; and Master Thomas Dunne, 36c Talbot street, were highly commended. In the girls' section, Miss Cora Cadwell, Cosy Lodge, Seaview avenue, Clontarf, won the first prize. The second prize was tied for by Miss Maureen Conroy, 14 Arnott street, South

TWO LAND MINES

FOUND IN CO. TIPPERARY.

Civic Guards, accompanied by military escorts, have been making extensive searches for firearms and ammunition, which, it is alleged, have been hidden in the Clonmel district.

On Friday evening Sergeant O'Shea, Clonmel, and Sergeant Rohan, Clerihan, accompanied by soldiers, searched the Lisronagh district and discovered two large land mines, fully charged, which weighed about a half cwt. each.

The mines, which were buried some distance in the ground on a farm, were conveyed to Clonmel. Other searches were carried out in Clonmel district on Saturday.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

AN ARMED ENCOUNTER.

POLICE PATROL'S SMART WORK.

(BEFORE MR. COOPER, K.C.)

Details of an armed encounter between three civilians and a police patrol in Clyde road, Dublin, were related on Saturday, when three men were returned for trial on the charge of attempted murder.

The prisoners were Michael Hyland, labourer, Dodderview cottages, Ballsbridge; Charles Cooney, labourer, Dodderview cottages, and Robert F. Moran, labourer, Dodderview cottages.

The evidence of Constable Keenan was that he and Constables Teeling and Hill were on special cycling patrol duty at Burlington road, when the movements of the three prisoners attracted their attention. The constables followed the men to Clyde road, where they called on them to halt, telling them that they were police on duty. The civilians, instead of obeying, scattered. Cooney, however, on putting up his hands, was seized by Constable Teeling, while the other two ran away in different directions.

In the pursuit which followed Hyland fired two shots at Constables Teeling and Hill. Constable Teeling fired one shot over Hyland's head, and was going to fire again when his revolver jammed. Hyland then escaped.

It was stated that Cooney, when arrested, had no arms.

Answering Robert Moran, Constable Teeling said that he was quite sure that he and his colleagues shouted that they were police.

Moran—I did not know you were police.

Inspector Brennan deposed that he arrested Moran and Hyland in their beds. At Donnybrook police station Moran made a statement admitting that he was in company with the other two prisoners on the night in question. They saw "three suspicious-looking men" at the corner of a lane. The men followed them from Burlington road to Clyde road.

Mr. Cooper, in returning the prisoners for trial, said that the "courage and bravery" displayed by the constables were worthy of any police force in Europe.

SOLICITOR CHARGED.

SUM OF £1,700 INVOLVED.

Fraudulently converting to his own use £1,757, the property of Blackrock Urban District Council, was the charge preferred against Mr. Charles P. O'Neill, solicitor to the Blackrock Council and a former chairman of the Pembroke Urban Council.

According to the evidence of Detective Officer Hoey, the accused man, who was arrested at Hammersmith police station, London, on Friday last, asked to be shown the warrant for his arrest, and on seeing it said, "That is your authority all right." The charge sheet alleged that the accused "received certain property for and on behalf of Blackrock Urban District Council, and that he did fraudulently convert same to his own use, said property consisting of the following sums of money:—£445 received by him on 20th May, 1924; £437 received by him on 22nd July, 1924; £445 received by him on 16th April, 1924, and £430 received by him on 10th October, 1924."

In the Court on Saturday, when the matter of remand was mentioned, Mr. Nolan-Whelan, who (instructed by Mr. Charles Murray) defended, requested that the period of remand should be as short as possible. His instructions, he said, were that the case would take a very different aspect when it was gone into, and his client was anxious to meet the charge as soon as possible.

The Justice granted a remand until Wednesday, and accused was removed in custody.

LEOPARDSTOWN.

GOOD WEATHER AT APRIL MEETING.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

Delightful weather and a large attendance were the chief features of the April meeting at Leopardstown course last Saturday. A day in the open, under pleasanter climatic conditions, than have been experienced of late, brought the week to an agreeable close, and gave an opportunity for discussing the prospects for Punchestown—a topic which is absorbing all thoughts at present.

Thanks to the fine weather and the sunshine, there was quite a good display of the latest spring modes, especially in millinery. Some of the new styles were particularly attractive, and though the close-fitting shapes rather conceal the otherwise becoming glimpses of the coiffures, no other class of hat would suit the chic tailor-made costumes, which are ideal wear for sporting occasions. A few examples of the new brocaded materials were seen, and several embroidered coats were most effectively worn.

Among those seen in the Club enclosure and paddock were:—Lady Sophie Grattan-Bellew and Miss Grattan-Bellew, Lady Eva Forbes, accompanied by Captain the Hon. George and Lady Margaret Savile, the Hon. Mrs. Dewhurst, Sir Walter Nugent, Sir William and Lady Goulding, General Sir Bryan Mahon, the Hon. H. C. Alexander, the Right Hon. T. K. FLATS FOR WORKERS.

WORK AT KEOGH BARRACKS.

According to a report submitted by Dr. W. C. Dwyer to a meeting of the Borough Commissioners at the City Hall on Saturday last, the work of converting Keogh Barracks into self-contained flats is considerably advanced. The Commissioners have taken a 90 years' lease of the barracks at the yearly rent of £480—the buildings and lands to be utilised solely for such purposes as are authorised by the Housing of the Working Classes Act, including the provision of church, presbytery, schools, etc. Almost all the existing buildings are undergoing conversion into self-contained flats, to the number of 202, and, in addition, twenty-four temporary three-roomed dwellings are being erected within the barrack area.

There are at present about 130 families in occupation, and nearly all of these have been transferred from city tenements reported as unfit for habitation.

The converted buildings and new houses will mean that 420 families, representing a population of approximately 2,000, will be housed on this area.

The provision of school accomodation has been considered, and for this purpose it has been agreed to transfer the buildings known as the recreation buildings (excluding the gymnasium hall) to the diocesan trustees for the sum of £2,000, being the amount of the valuer's estimate of the Corporation's interest in the lease respecting same.

The Very Rev. Canon Magill, P.P., acting with the approval of the Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, has arranged that the diocesan trustees will take over the interest of the Corporation in the lease of the church situated within the area, together with the adjacent plot for a presbytery, for the sum of £1,000, and the Minister for Local Government and Public Health has sanctioned this proposal. Canon Magill has applied for further school accomodation, and other buildings have been offered to him for this purpose.

The report was adopted.

The Storm in Donegal.—The recent storm in Donegal was the worst for many years. The gale blew for over twenty-four hours and left its track along the whole countryside. Roadsides everywhere were blocked with fallen timber. Roofs of houses were torn away, and a big amount of damage was done to property. The rough weather has delayed the setting of the crops in many places in the county.

The Irish Times.

MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1925.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

In the course of a speech at Wexford last Saturday Mr. Hogan, Minister for Agriculture, declared that the farmers would have to co-operate with the State and improve agricultural methods generally if they were to regain their old position on the market.—(Page 7.)

The Cork Farmers' Union on Saturday discussed the Shannon scheme, and passed a resolution asking the Minister of Agriculture the average size of agricultural holdings in the Free State and the purpose to which electric power can be applied on those holdings, having regard to the cost of installation and transmission.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

A reservoir above the little town of Skelmorlie, on the Firth of Clyde, burst on Saturday afternoon. The waters rushed down a hill, destroying a house in their path, and five persons were drowned. Two of the victims were carried down to the sea.—(Page 7.)

The Duke and Duchess of York arrived at Victoria Station, London, on their return from East Africa, yesterday.—(Page 7.)

Mr. James Rochfort Maguire, a pioneer with the late Cecil Rhodes in mining and Empire-building, died in London on Saturday.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

Field-Marshal von Hindenburg yesterday outlined his policy in the German Presidential elections.—(Page 7.)

A rising occurred in Lisbon during the week-end, but it was quickly suppressed. Many hundreds of revolutionaries were wounded before they surrendered.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING.

At Leopardstown on Saturday Petit Beau won the Paddock Plate, Carrif the Silverpark Plate, L'Aine the Foxrock Plate, War Song the Glencairn Plate, Brave Colleen the Stand Plate and Noggin the Bray Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

At the Maze on Saturday Garrymore won the Castlereagh Hurdle Race, Gate Book the Maralin Plate, Linfield the Hillsborough Steeplechase, Alroi the Antrim Plate, Grecian Wave the Barbour Steeplechase and Irish Deer the Lisburn Plate.—(Page 10.)

At Alexandra Park Belah won the Three-Year-Old Handicap Plate.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

Lombard street was well supplied with loanable credits, and loans till Monday were made at 3½-½ per cent. Among Exchanges, French francs were slightly lower.—(Page 4.)

"The Brutal Fact."

In the Mediterranean countries many people lie in the sun throughout the day, shifting themselves only when the advancing rays threaten to leave them in the shadow. The Irish farmer has enjoyed a long spell of sunshine. Now the rays are moving onwards, and soon, if he fails to keep pace with them, he may be left in the shadow; perhaps, indeed, he is there already. This warning was the keynote of the very important speech which the Free State's Minister for Lands and Agriculture delivered last Saturday at Wexford. Mr. Hogan told his audience of farmers that the Free State's staple industry was in a bad way, in spite of its advantages of climate, of inherited instinct for agricultural pursuits and of contiguity to the richest market in Europe. The statistics which he furnished deserve the most careful study by Irishmen of all classes and occupations; for the prosperity of all depends upon the prosperity of the farmer. In every branch of production where formerly we held the foremost place our Continental and overseas rivals are forging ahead of us. We are mishandling the export of beef so badly that we are losing a large and easily accessible share of the dealers' profits and are allowing the Argentine and the other meat-producing countries to dictate their own terms of competition. The same story is true of our exports of bacon, butter, eggs and poultry. Last year Denmark supplied £20,000,000 worth of bacon, £18,000,000 of butter and £5,500,000 of eggs and poultry to the British markets. The respective values of the Free State exports in the same year were £4,000,000, £4,000,000 and £3,250,000. Denmark has achieved these results under a variety of handicaps: the two words "enterprise" and "organisation" spell the secret of her success. Her supplies to the British markets continue to increase, while the Free State's supplies continue to diminish. "The brutal fact," said Mr. Hogan, "is that we are being driven from the market all along the line." When we add the further fact—frankly admitted by Mr. Hogan—that the British market is our only market, the most thoughtless of Irishmen must realise the gravity of the economic crisis which confronts our country in the first years of its political independence.

The State can do, and has done, much to help our farmers against their foreign rivals. Mr. Hogan's Egg, Dairy Produce and Live Stock Acts provide a basis for the entire reorganisation of our agricultural industry. He gave his blessing, last Saturday, to the Wexford farmers' efforts to establish a dressed meat trade which, if it is successful, may reform one of the most wasteful aspects of our whole machinery of export. Furthermore, when Mr. Hogan discussed the rewards of better farming, he was not indulging in the dreams of an Alnaschar, but was dealing—as Denmark has proved—in mathematical certainties. By the right sort of organisation the Free State farmers infallibly can produce superior meat which will fetch superior prices in London and Manchester. They can divert to their own pockets profits which to-day they present gratuitously to English and Scottish cattle-finishers. By increasing the milk-yield of their cows and by improving the business of egg-production they can add three or four millions to the income of our agricultural population within the next three or four years. The State, however, cannot do everything. It may preach, legislate and encourage; but the farmer's fate is in his own hands. As Mr. Hogan said, the farmers must co-operate with the Government and they cannot co-operate effectively till they are organised. Hitherto all attempts to organise the Irish farmers in such a way as to secure a high and uniform standard of produce have gained a merely partial success. An immense vis inertiæ—due in varying measures to natural conservatism, to faulty education and to the obsession of politics—remains to be overcome. It must be overcome if the Free State is to prosper, and it can be overcome only by a clear recognition among all classes that agriculture is the mainstay of the nation's life and must hold the paramount place in the national economy. In so far as a certain dissipation of the Government's interests has tended to obscure this fact the Government is to blame. Our safety in the British market is an infinitely more urgent matter than the Shannon scheme, and our exports of cattle, butter and eggs to Germany appear to be negligible.

Bulgaria's Peril.

The terrible bomb outrage which took place in Sofia on last Thursday has sent a feeling of horror throughout the civilised world. Political crimes are commonplaces in South-Eastern Europe, and Bulgaria, perhaps, is the most restless of all the Balkan countries; but this latest piece of savagery is unparalleled in modern history. Early last week an attempt was made on the life of young King Boris of Bulgaria, and on the same day the Minister for War, General Constantine Georghieff, was assassinated in the streets of Sofia. A memorial service was held for the murdered officer in the great cathedral of Sveta Nedelia on Thursday; and soon after it had begun a large infernal machine was exploded in the cathedral. Hundreds of people, including women and children, were killed outright, and it is reported that almost one thousand others were wounded more or less seriously. Among those who were killed were the Mayor of Sofia, six generals of the Bulgarian Army, and several high officials and ex-Ministers, while the Prime Minister and several of his colleagues were injured. Apparently the outrage was perpetrated by Bolshevist agents, two of whom, Yankoff and Minkoff, of the Central Communist Council, have been arrested. The original idea seems to have been to kill the King in the ambush, and then to massacre all the principal soldiers and politicians during the resulting memorial service. When the attempt on the King failed, General Georghieff was murdered merely to secure the necessary function in the cathedral. All Bulgaria has been thrown into dismay by this ghastly affair. Several Communists are reported to have been torn to pieces by infuriated relatives of some of the victims. The Government is taking the most drastic steps to discover and deal with the criminals, but such a strict censorship has been imposed that trustworthy information cannot be obtained.

Communism in Bulgaria is chiefly agrarian, and the party which seems to have been directly responsible for the Sofia outrage is that to which the murdered Stambulisky belonged. Since the failure of last year's crops, together with the high cost of living, has created much unrest in the country, the agents of the Third International have found ready listeners to the propaganda which is being disseminated throughout the Balkans from Vienna, Varna, and Constantinople. The Russian idea is to raise up strife not only in Bulgaria, but in every Balkan country. If they can bring about a revolution in Bulgaria, the Bolsheviks believe that it will spread like wild-fire, first to Macedonia, ever a hot-bed of discontent, and afterwards to Serbia, Greece, Rumania and Turkey, whence the transition to Palestine and Egypt would be easy. Luckily, the Bulgarian Government appears to have plenty of courage and will not be terrorised by Communist bombs; but it is high time that the Balkan States should act in concert to banish the Bolshevist emissaries. Most of the staff-work is being done at Vienna, and Serbia is affording sanctuary to those Bulgarian "exiles" who, for one reason or another, have been sent out of their own country. The Little Entente itself is in danger, and therefore it ought to ignore Bulgaria's past and help her to get rid of the Communist menace. It is obvious from the Sofia affair that the men who are planning revolution in the Balkans will stop at nothing. They are determined to bring about a coup which will repay them for their many failures in Western Europe; and if they should succeed, the whole Balkans would be set ablaze. Civilisation has had enough of Balkan troubles. The Great Powers ought to give all possible help to the Bulgarian Government in the serious crisis with which it is faced.

Summer Time.

"Summer time" began in the Free State between Saturday night and Sunday, and winter, officially, is a thing of the past. For the moment, however, we may content ourselves with the enjoyment of the additional hour of brightness which the new order of things enables us to snatch from the fugitive day; for it is yet too soon to cast our clouts and tempt the fickle elements with summer clothing. "Summer time" seems to have come to stay in Western Europe, and as the years pass the protests against such an interference with nature's decrees become less and less effective. It brings such large advantages to the millions of men and women who are cooped up in factories and offices all day that its shortcomings on the balance are almost negligible. We all have become accustomed now to the arrangement by which twice every year we tinker with our clocks and watches; and the majority of the population of Europe has accepted the system as part of its ordinary routine. The economic benefits of "summer time" are very great, and householders who last night were able to dine in daylight for the first time this year will have little patience with those persons who persist in regarding it as a form of sacrilege. The saving in gas and electric light during the period in which "summer time" prolongs the daylight must be very considerable, and matters of this kind continue to play an important part in a housewife's homely budget. "Summer time" is one of the useful legacies of the war. We are glad that, by adopting it, the Free State Government has fallen into line with all the progressive countries of Europe.

De Senectute.

It is said that a man receives one of the most painful shocks of life on the first day when some polite youth rises to give him a seat in a tram. Here at last is external and inexpugnable proof of the approach of age. For the wise man, however, that shock will have been mitigated by previous symptoms of advancing years. According to Mr. Bernard Darwin, a golfer is beginning to be old when, on some fine afternoon in April, he realises as a conscious pleasure the heat of the sun upon his back. What middle-aged man will not be startled slightly by the news that next Friday will be the centenary of the birth of Robert Michael Ballantyne? Of course, Ballantyne was succeeded long ago by other caterers for the "long, long thoughts" of youth. The procession has marched from Jules Verne and Henty down to the dozen or so of popular writers into whose adventure stories—fat, well-printed, well-illustrated volumes—the benevolent uncle makes a curious glance at Christmas-time before he despatches them to their proper destination. He is sure in his heart that none of these new stories is half so good as "The Young Fur Traders" or "Coral Island," but if the elderly man should take up "Coral Island" again, in the hope of recovering "the first fine, careless rapture," his disappointment would be dismal. Be that as it may, he had not ceased to regard the favourite of his youth as a contemporary; and to be told that Ballantyne was born just a hundred years ago is a disconcerting thing. Eheu, fugaces!

THE ROYAL DRAWING SOCIETY'S EXHIBITION.

DUBLIN EXHIBITORS' SUCCESS.

The thirty-sixth annual exhibition of the Royal Drawing Society was opened last Saturday at the Guildhall, London. About 3,000 drawings were displayed on the screens. Some 10,000 were received for competition, and it was not possible to hang all; but those not hung on screens are on view at the Guildhall. Many of the drawings have come from the Dominions, and not a few from foreign lands.

King Edward, the first patron of the Society, took a very real interest in its development. As an enduring record of this, a small number of drawings in every year is selected from the exhibition to be added to the permanent collection in the King Edward VII. Memorial Gallery, 18 Queen Anne's Gate. One of those selected this year is the work of a child of three years of age, Madeline Berthel. The spontaneous work of very young children has always been the Society's special care.

The "Village Signs" this year show originality. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of York take a great interest in this section of the exhibition. Gold, silver, and bronze stars, as well as some special prizes, are awarded for the best drawings, and there are four classes of commendation. This year seven bronze stars have been awarded to children under nine years of age. One of these goes to a Dublin boy, Perry Guard, a pupil at Miss Cooke's studio, Molesworth street, for some drawings of figures in action. Bronze stars have been awarded to two other pupils of the same studio—Margaret McCann, aged eleven, for water-colour studies, and Gertrude McCarthy, thirteen, for Dublin street scenes in pastel.

Some excellent work is on view in the "Over School Age" Section. This includes the contributions of previous exhibitors now over nineteen years of age.

APRIL.

As, free of toil and fain to stray,
  Idly I drifted here and there,
Wild April met me on the way,
  A lone and lovely wanderer!

Lips parted in a glad surprise,
  Her wind-blown tresses shimmering
With golden light, and in her eyes
  The eternal wonder of the Spring.

The lark was loud above the plain.
  I listened with enchanted ears.
'Twas April in the world again,
  And I forgot the spoiling years.

LONDON LETTER

THE FRENCH CABINET.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

That the new Government in France is unlikely to last more than a month is the view of people here who know much about conditions in France; for the Socialist Party has given its support to M. Painlevé only on condition that he introduces a Bill for a Capital Levy. Since the Senate and industry generally are up in arms against such a proposal, it is extremely unlikely that any advance will be made, and a defeat of the Government in the Senate is regarded as certain. The new Government, since it contains M. Caillaux, has a marked interest for England; for he has always been an advocate of a Franco-German understanding.

I met a man this afternoon who had just returned yesterday from Paris, where he had been all through the political crisis. He thinks that the French people are paying remarkably little attention to political affairs, since they are all engaged in making money as fast as they possibly can. French trade is in a flourishing condition, and in January last a "record" month was marked with an index number 3.6 higher than in the previous "record" month of March last year. The increase is due to the more intensive production in the heavy industries, such as iron and steel, with a growth in the foreign trade of the country. My informant says that money is now being spent freely on road repairs and construction, and on every side there are unmistakable signs of prosperity.

Trotsky.

It is rumoured that Trotsky, not long since banished from Moscow, is to return to the Soviet Government, and will receive an important appointment. The reason given for this new development is that the health of the Bolshevist leader is fully restored, but it probably means that there is to be yet another change in the attitude of the Soviet Government towards freedom of trade and the use of capital. It is not long ago that the failure of the Soviet system of Government was recognised in Moscow, and the return of Trotsky may be regarded as an admission that the greatest revolution recorded has failed to justify the expectations of the Bolsheviks. It is now expected that within a reasonable period there will be further developments with a view to encouraging private trade and enterprise, since it was on that point that Trotsky differed from the other members of the Soviet Government.

An Air Raid.

On Monday week London, perhaps, will enjoy a series of air raids; for every night during a week enemy aeroplanes are to sweep over the city, while searchlights will pierce the skies again, and the anti-aircraft guns will thunder quite in the approved manner. During the attacks bombs are to be dropped, but they are to consist of pamphlets containing an urgent invitation to young men to join the territorial aircraft forces. It seems that these forces are lamentably weak, and, since they are responsible in some degree for the safety of London during an air raid, it is hoped that the young men will respond to the invitation to be so forcibly expressed.

Mosul.

The work in connection with the definition of the Northern boundary of Iraq will be carried a stage further to-morrow, when the three Commissioners appointed by the League of Nations are due to arrive in Geneva to draft their report for presentation to the League Council. There is evidently considerable doubt in Turkey as to the findings of the Commission; for, whereas some reports anticipate a favourable decision, a section of the Turkish Press continues to urge a compromise before the recommendations are divulged. The compromise suggested is the inclusion of Mosul in the Turkish area, with a concession of the oilfields to Great Britain. Efforts have been made to bring this scheme before Mr. Austen Chamberlain; but, in view of the uncertainty whether the plan is officially supported by the Angora Government, the Foreign Secretary prefers to await the report of the Commission before expressing an opinion upon unofficial suggestions.

The Building Trade.

The building industry in London is threatened with fresh trouble to-morrow. By the terms of the agreement following the strike and lock-out of last summer, the working hours throughout the country should be increased from 44 to 46½ hours a week from the beginning of summer time, except in districts where, by mutual arrangement between the employers and the men, the hours are to be maintained at 44. No such arrangement has been negotiated for London, and great surprise has been caused by the issue during the week-end of notices by the men's leaders that they are to keep strictly to the 44-hour week. The leaders appear to have acted not only without the authority of the National Federation of Operative Builders, but in direct opposition to the instructions of that body, which had notified the unions concerned that the increase in hours was automatic with the coming into operation of summer time.

Royal Cars.

A new motor car, which the Queen has just ordered, will replace one which has been in use for some years; for the senior members of the Royal Family have never been extravagant so far as frequent new cars are concerned. Queen Alexandra's landaulette, for instance, really deserves to be described as old-fashioned. It runs well, and has been carefully maintained, but its outline reveals it as belonging to yesterday; for it was the last one purchased by King Edward.

Primrose Day.

The observance of Primrose Day was more marked yesterday than it has been for some years past. The statue of Beaconsfield in Parliament square was elaborately decorated, while thousands of people, including a great number of children, paid a visit to drop bunches of primroses at its base. When the evening arrived there was a great carpet of yellow blooms over the grass all round the statue. During the day a number of motor coaches decorated with primroses carried a large party of members of the Primrose League to Hughenden, where they placed wreaths on the grave in the churchyard.

British Fisheries.

Shortly after the reassembling of the House of Commons Mr. Harrison, the Conservative member for Bodmin, intends to call attention to the present condition of the fishing industry in this country. It is said that the British fishing industry is being seriously jeopardised by unfair competition, supported by the German Government with cheaper ships and underpaid labour, as compared with conditions ruling here. German fishing crews receive only a quarter of the money paid to British fishermen, with the result that the markets are menaced with swamping by German-caught fish. At Aberdeen Fish Market the landing of white fish during a fixed period has been the largest in the history of the port, totalling 1,273 tons: 905 tons came from the German trawlers.

DEATH.

POWER—April 19, 1925, at her residence, Cashel, Tipperary, Lily, beloved wife of Lawrence P. Power, V.S. Office and High Mass at Cashel Church to-morrow (Tuesday) at 11 o'clock (Old Time). Funeral immediately afterwards. No flowers.

Heaven forbid there should be such a thing as a perfect woman.—Mr. C. R. W. Nevinson.

FARMERS MUST CO-OPERATE.

CONFERENCE AT WEXFORD.

BRITISH MARKET CAN BE REGAINED.

MR. HOGAN'S ADVICE.

HOW IRISH PRODUCE IS OUSTED BY DANISH.

"The Free State is being driven from the market all along the line," said Mr. Hogan, Minister for Lands and Agriculture, at Wexford last Saturday.

The present position was clearly revealed by the British trade statistics for 1924 (just published):—

	Free State. £	Denmark. £	All Countries. £
Bacon and Pork.....	4,000,000	20,000,000	45,000,000
Butter	4,000,000	18,000,000	45,000,000
Egg	3,250,000	5,500,000	15,000,000

Mr. Hogan pointed to the causes and the remedies. He said that there would always be a market for store cattle, but at present they were supplying a second-class article, and the system of farming needed development and finish. The farmers must co-operate with the Government if they wanted to have adequate results.

Uniformity of produce was the secret of success. The average milk yield could be increased from 400 gallons per cow to 500, and the quality of the cattle could be improved by 20s. to 30s. per head. This would mean an additional income of between £4,000,000 and £5,000,000, a sum equal to the total rates, rents and annuities of the country.

The farmers, by effectively co-operating, could thus live free of rent and rates.

LOST PROFITS.

DEVELOPMENT AND FINISH NEEDED.

Mr. Hogan's remarks were addressed to a representative gathering on the occasion of a demonstration at the premises of the Wexford Meat Supply and Bacon Factory, Ltd. He inspected the factory, and afterwards visited the works of the Wexford Engineering Company, Ltd., and Messrs. Philip Pierce and Company, Ltd.

The factory is equipped to deal with 800 pigs, 250 cattle and 200 sheep per week, and has spacious cold storage accommodation. It is electrically lighted, and the machinery is driven by a 70 h.p. Crossley engine. An extension of the business would probably lead to the establishment of a tannery in Wexford.

Mr. Hogan, in the course of his address, said that some people spoke as if a change of Government meant an equally radical change in our agriculture. Farmers, however, realised that the production of live stock and live stock products was going to be for some time the mainstay of Irish agriculture, and that, from this point of view, what our whole system of farming needed was not so much change, but development and, above all, finish.

In 1924 the Free State exported almost £17,000,000 worth of live cattle to Great Britain, as against £2,300,000 worth sent to Great Britain, mainly from Canada. The number of cattle imported from Canada had increased from 50,000 in 1923 to 70,000 in 1924, and during the first three months of this year it was 20,000, as against 15,000 last year. Of the £17,000,000 worth of stock exported from this country, not more than £3,000,000 were slaughtered on arrival at the other side or within a few days of arrival. The balance were finished in England or Scotland, and the best sold as Scotch beef.

No one maintained that we could slaughter even all our fat cattle here. The point was that at present we slaughtered virtually none and shared none of the profits of the trade. Neither did anyone maintain that we could finish all our cattle here.

There would always be a profitable store trade with Great Britain, but we could at least finish properly a number equal to the proportion exported as fats. Farmers could make some attempt thus to supplement their incomes by retaining for themselves a share of the dealers' profits.

A SECOND-CLASS ARTICLE.

The cattle trade generally was not supplying an article which customers required and from which they could make most profit. They were throwing away their natural advantages, neglecting the market for first-class beef, in which no other country exporting to Great Britain could compete, and were entering into competition on their own terms with the Argentine and other countries that exported £27,000,000 worth of chilled or frozen beef to Britain in 1924.

SIGNIFICANT FIGURES.

The figures (given above) for bacon, butter, poultry and eggs were equally illuminating, and attained an added significance by reason of the fact that over a period of years our supplies were diminishing while those of our rivals were increasing in the only market which we were likely to have for some time. The brutal fact was—we were being driven from the market all along the line.

They could restore this position, but only by intelligent co-operation between the State and the farmers. The State could do very little for agriculture compared with what farmers could do for themselves. There was no royal road to success. No Government could find effective substitutes for intelligence, organisation, and hard work.

ORGANISATION THE REMEDY.

He went on to say that in passing into law the Agricultural Produce (Eggs) Act, the Dairy Produce Act, and the Live Stock Breeding Act, they were merely doing what their competitors had done long ago. They could not get adequate results from these Acts unless the farmers gave their co-operation; and farmers could not do this unless they were organised. Farming, especially in Ireland, was a highly complex business, while, on the other hand, uniformity of produce was the secret of success. They could not have this uniformity unless farmers were organised. This applied, not only to the dressed meat industry, but to every other aspect of agriculture.

If, went on Mr. Hogan, the average milk yield were increased by 100 gallons per cow, while at the same time the quality of the cattle produced could be improved by 20s. to 30s. per head in three years, what would that represent in hard cash? At seven pence per gallon 100 gallons of milk would yield about £3, and this, added to the improvement spoken of, would mean a net profit to farmers of over £4,000,000 per annum. This was equal to the total rent, rates, and annuities of the country.

That was what could be attained by more efficient feeding and cultivation. If they put their backs into it they could restore the position of Irish agriculture in a very short time. They had a big task in front, but the future was in their own hands. He himself had no doubt that a country that had emerged successfully from the conditions of the last three years was going to succeed.

A BAD POLICY.

Mr. D. Twomey, Chief Live Stock Inspector, Department of Agriculture, in an address on the "Breeding of Irish Cattle and Markets for Irish Beef," said that discredit was brought on the cattle-breeding industry of the country by the fact that a large portion of our farmers were breeding cattle without any definite object. The adoption of such a policy could result in nothing but the production of weedy animals, and would, generally speaking, cause the industry to languish.

The danger from this was exceedingly great, because during the past four or five years Canadian cattle had greatly improved and were now suited to the requirements of their customers. If the breeders in Canada and the Argentine found it to their advantage to

REVOLVER DUEL.

DETECTIVES' FIGHT WITH BANDITS.

EXCITING CHASE IN DUBLIN.

A fight between detectives and a band of armed motor thieves, one of whom is thought to have been wounded, took place late last Saturday night at Dartmouth square, Dublin. The detectives encountered the men while searching for a motor car which had been stolen from outside a house in Leeson Park. The firing lasted for about fifteen minutes, and eventually the pursued men got away under cover of darkness.

At about 11 o'clock a report was made by telephone to the Detective Division in Brunswick street that a Crossley-Overland motor car belonging to Dr. F. C. Purser, of 32 Fitzwilliam place, had been stolen from outside the house, 57 Leeson Park, where the doctor had been paying a visit. A description of the car was given. A party of detectives, comprising Superintendent Ennis, Sergeants Mooney and Hughes, and Drivers Lee and Fagan, left at once to search the district.

Driving slowly along Dartmouth road, the detectives saw two men standing by a stationary motor car, while a third man was working at the engine. As they approached, the three men took to their heels and turned into a laneway off Dartmouth square.

The detectives followed in their motor car. As they reached the turning a shot was fired by one of the pursued men, whereupon Driver Lee switched off all lights, so that the car should not make too conspicuous a target, and the fire was then returned. For a quarter of an hour there was a brisk exchange of shots. The detectives' car moved cautiously up the lane until several bullets, piercing the radiator of their car, put the engine out of action. Dismounting, the detectives continued the chase on foot. Nothing could be seen of the fugitives until they ran from the lane towards Charlemont Bridge, where they separated and moved off in different directions.

The detectives returned to Dartmouth road, where they found that the motor car which the three men had deserted was the one for which they had been searching. The police car subsequently was removed to headquarters.

So far there have been no arrests in connection with the affair.

A RIGHT-HAND MAN OF CECIL RHODES.

DEATH OF MR. JAMES ROCHFORT MAGUIRE.

Mr. James Rochfort Maguire, C.B.E., died of heart failure, at his residence, 3 Cleveland square, London, on Saturday morning. Mr. Maguire was in his seventy-first year. Since 1923 he had been Chairman of the British South Africa Company, in succession to Mr. Beit. Before that date he was Vice-President of the company.

Mr. Maguire was a remarkable instance of the highly educated man who finds himself no less at home in business affairs than in the world of books. He had worked in various fields and had attained success in all. The son of an Irish rector, he was educated at Cheltenham and at Merton College, Oxford.

At the University he gave indications of that versatility and thoroughness which distinguished him throughout life; in the field of sport he won a steeplechase; and in the schools he gained a double first, and was elected a Fellow of All Souls. But perhaps the greatest benefit that he derived from Oxford was his acquaintance with that master personality and Empire builder, the late Cecil Rhodes, an acquaintance that ripened into close and life-long friendship.

In 1883 Mr. Maguire was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple, and twelve years later he married Julia Beatrice, eldest daughter of the first Viscount Peel.

In the meantime, he had gone to South Africa with Cecil Rhodes, and had embarked in mining and financial enterprises which brought colossal wealth to both. Among the notable transactions in which he played a part was the Kimberley diamond amalgamation.

Rhodes was a keen judge of character. He had something of that faculty to which Froude attributes no small part of the success of Julius Caesar—the faculty of knowing and selecting the best men for any enterprise of moment. He saw that Rochfort Maguire possessed the qualities of coolness, courage, daring and resource. He sent him on a mission to Lobengula, whose Kraal was at Bulawayo, then a huge town of Matabele huts. Maguire, with two companions who could speak the Matabele language, spent three months, not free from peril, in Lobengula's territory. At length Lobengula was induced to sign a concession, and on foot of this Rhodes built the Chartered Company.

Irish politics in the stirring days when Parnell led the Nationalist Party made a natural appeal to such a mind as Rochfort Maguire. He brought with him the prestige that he had gained with Cecil Rhodes; he brought the reputation of great wealth, of [illegible], and of infinite resource, things all of value to an Irish leader and an Irish party fighting against odds. He was elected for North Donegal in 1890, and two years later was returned for the West Clare constituency, which he represented till 1895. In the meantime, however, the Parnellite Party, once so strong, had been rent into two contending sections. Rochfort Maguire stood by the followers of the late John Redmond, and his sympathies were with them to the end. West Clare, however, chose another representative in Major Jameson at the next election, and Maguire from that time took no active part in Irish politics

Mr. Maguire was Chairman of the Rhodesian Railways, Ltd., as well as of the Chartered Company. He was in South Africa during the Boer War, and, with Mrs. Maguire, went through the Siege of Kimberley. In him has died almost the last of the daring and romantic figures that supported Cecil Rhodes in enterprises and exploits that provided a new State and added a vast territory to the British Crown.

LOUGH SWILLY RAILWAY

NOT TO BE CLOSED.

From Our Own Correspondent.
BELFAST, Sunday.

The Derry and Lough Swilly Railway is not to be closed down, as promises of substantial assistance have been received from both the Free State and Northern Governments.

The former, it is stated, offered a grant of £7,000 on condition that the railway would be kept running for a year. The deficit was estimated to be over £10,000, and the directors, having failed to obtain any concessions from the trades union in regard to wages, decided to make an appeal for assistance also to the Northern Government.

A conference was held with Sir James Craig and the Northern Finance Minister, Mr. H. M. Pollock, last week, when all the circumstances were fully discussed. As a result of the interview, assurances have been given that the Free State grant will be supplemented.

FIRE IN GREYSTONES CHURCH.

ROOF DAMAGED.

Yesterday morning at 8.30 o'clock the Sexton of Greystones Church observed smoke issuing from the roof over the chancel. The Rev. W. L. Jameson, the Rector; Major Jeffreys, Sergeant Hunt, and a number of Civic Guards, and several of the townspeople were quickly on the scene, and after a hole had been made in the roof the fire was extinguished, with the aid of Minimax extinguishers.

The outbreak was caused by the collapse of a flue over the furnace.

After temporary repairs had been carried out, morning Service was conducted as usual at 11.30 o'clock, and a special thanksgiving was offered for the preservation of the church.

A NEW REVOLT IN LISBON.

SURRENDER OF THE REBELS.

SOME HUNDREDS WOUNDED.

BUSINESS AS USUAL DURING FIGHTING.

ANOTHER rising in Portugal took place during the week-end. It was short-lived, however. News is of a fragmentary nature, but it reports the surrender of the revolutionary forces at 9.45 yesterday morning after the bombardment of their stronghold, which opened at 3 p.m. on Saturday. Some hundreds of the rebels were wounded; the number of dead, however, is not disclosed.

The revolutionary leaders have taken refuge in the Spanish Legation.

The first clash came on Saturday morning (says our Lisbon Correspondent), when groups of the Red Legion fired at the Government troops in the streets.

Later the commanders of the National Republican Guard were summoned before the Portuguese President and asked to prepare plans for safeguarding public life and property.

The President, Senhor Teixeira Gomes, then left for Cascaes (a fortified town on the coast 14 miles from Lisbon), where he remained until the rebellion was over. He then returned to the Cramo barracks of the Republican Guard, where a Cabinet meeting was held.

The forces loyal to the Government during the meantime hemmed in the revolutionaries, so that the latter were unable to receive reinforcements from outside The Deputy Senhor Cunha Lesal, who was believed to be the head of the movement, and General Sinel Cordes, who had been selected as the head of the new Revolutionary Cabinet, were taken prisoners. This disheartened the rebels, and desertions are numerous.

According to Reuter's correspondent, while the fighting was in progress the tramcars were running and the banks remained open. The Government, however, decreed a suspension of the constitutional guarantees.

"Complete tranquillity" is now reported to prevail throughout the country.

KILLED BY RHINOCEROS.

DUBLIN WOMAN EXPLORER'S FATE.

Further particulars have now been received from Nairobi, Kenya Colony, of the deaths of Mrs. Green, a Dublin woman explorer, and Captain E. D. Atkins, both of whom were killed by the same rhinoceros, at Wanyuki, at the foot of Mount Kenya.

It seems certain that Mrs. Green attacked the rhinoceros without any regard for her personal safety, but her ammunition was only of the soft-nosed type. The rhinoceros charged, and, as it was on open ground, Mrs. Green had no chance to escape. The natives with her fled.

Later the same day Captain and Mrs. Atkins were motoring in the vicinity when the rhinoceros charged them, and Captain Atkins was killed in an effort to blind it by meeting it with his coat. He must have been carried for some distance on the animal's horn.

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF YORK.

ARRIVAL IN LONDON.

The Duke and Duchess of York arrived at Victoria, London, at 3.20 yesterday afternoon on their return from their four and a half months' tour in East Africa and the Sudan. A very large crowd assembled in the precincts of the station. When the Royal travellers came to their motor car they were received with great enthusiasm. Among the personages gathered on the platform to greet them were Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

The Duke and Duchess looked bronzed and well.

Captain Brooke, Comptroller of the Duke's Household, speaking for their Royal Highnesses, said that they had had a remarkably fine trip, and had experienced the time of their lives.

It was learned from a member of the party that the Duke and Duchess had spent a good deal of time on the captain's bridge during the crossing of the Channel, and had chatted with interest with various members of the returning M.C.C. Team about their experiences.

THE PRINCE'S TOUR.

MINNA, NIGERIA, Sunday.

The Prince of Wales left Kano this morning en route for Lagos. His first destination is Ibadan, so that to-day has been a comparatively restful one for His Royal Highness, who danced until midnight last night at Kano.

The Prince has benefited from the game of polo which he played yesterday, which was his first ride since March 28th. He afterwards tried on a large straw native hat, shaped like a Welsh woman's, which the natives put on top of their turbans. The Prince, who was bareheaded, was completely engulfed thereby, which provided the heat-stricken inhabitants of Kano with some merry moments.

The train made a brief stoppage early this morning to take in water, and the Prince noticed that a considerable crowd had collected. When he alighted for a moment the crowd encircled the Prince at racing speed, though none of them came nearer than three yards. The Prince, who was utterly unperturbed, turned to the crowd, which opened reverently.—(Reuter.)

FIGHT WITH POACHERS.

EXCITING AFFAIR IN COUNTY DONEGAL.

A serious fracas occurred on Saturday night between poachers, water bailiffs and Civic Guards on the River Drowes, near Bundoran. Two gangs of poachers were at work on the river when they were surprised by a party of Guards and bailiffs.

The poachers offered a strong resistance, and in the fight which ensued sticks, stones and revolvers were used. One man was wounded by a revolver shot, but escaped along with his companions.

BRITISH STEAMER STRANDED

OFF COAST OF COSTA RICA.

A Lloyd's message from Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, states that the steamer Trehawke stranded yesterday near Cape Upright in a dangerous position, and has been abandoned. The crew is on board the Norwegian steamer Toluma.

[The Trehawke, a vessel of 4,189 tons, is owned by the Ham Steamship Co., Ltd., and is registered at St. Ives.]

DAM BURST IN SCOTLAND.

DWELLING-HOUSE SWEPT AWAY.

FIVE LIVES LOST.

Skelmorlie, the picturesque little holiday resort on the Firth of Clyde, has been plunged into gloom by the bursting of the reservoir on the hill above, on the estate of the Countess of Eglinton, last Saturday. When the reservoir, heavily laden by the abnormal rainfall of the previous night, burst its banks, the waters rushed downhill to the sea, carrying before them and involving the deaths by drowning of five persons—a woman and four children.

The victims were Mrs. Adams, wife of Patrick Adams, Taymouth, Skelmorlie; Ursula Scott, aged 14, Edinburgh, niece of Mrs. Adams; Alexander Niven Dallas, aged seven, son of Alexander Dallas, contractor, Bischburn Cottage, Skelmorlie; Frederick Dallas, aged five; and Winifred Maraj Manhannet, aged six, 171 Brand street, Glasgow, niece of Mr. Dallas.

HOUSE DESTROYED.

The Dallas's house, which was situated only a hundred yards from the reservoir, suffered most by the disaster. Not a stone or a vestige of the house remained after the raging torrent had passed, and some of the furniture was even found on a beach almost a quarter of a mile away.

Mrs. Dallas and her daughter Lizzie, aged nine, were rescued. They were in the house at the time, but the other three children were playing on the roadway, and the warning came too late. The bodies of Winnie and Alexander were found a short distance away, but Fred was carried over gardens and roads into the sea, where, after the tide had receded, the body was found half-buried in the sand.

Taymouth, the house of Mr. T. Adams, was etnanted at the time by the two nieces and a maid. Mrs. Adams was in the garage attending to the motor car when the waters swirled past, taking the garage and car with them. Mrs. Adams managed to stagger through the flood to her house, and saw the maid and one of the nieces reach safety. She immediately got a hold of the other girl, but both were carried away. Mrs. Adams was rescued, but died a few minutes later. Ursula's body was carried out to sea, and was found on the beach in the morning.

The electric power station was flooded, and there was no illumination in the place on Saturday night, not even in the Wemcss Bay hydropathic, where the power house was swamped. The residents had to take their meals in the waiting-room, as the basement, conservatory, and other rooms were flooded.

The Countess of Eglinton was on the scene of the disaster all through the afternoon, and offered every assistance.

A char-a-banc was going uphill when the driver encountered the first rush of water. He turned and effected a mad dash downhill to safety. Gardens, roads, and walls were carried away in the flood, and yesterday the stricken village looked as if it had been visited by a tornado.

RAILWAY TUNNEL STRUGGLE.

QUARRY OFFICIAL ATTACKED AND ROBBED.

In the darkest portion of the railway tunnel near Rathdrum station, Co. Wicklow, at noon on Saturday last, Mr. Thomas Byrne, Secretary to the Balleece Quarry Company, was attacked by two men, who flung a sack over his head, bound him securely, and robbed him of £177.

Mr. Byrne has been in the habit on Saturdays of walking along the railway line to the quarry with the workmen's wages, passing through the tunnel on his way. As he was walking through the tunnel on Saturday two men sprang out from the sides and accosted him. He asked them what they wanted, and one replied—"Money."

Instantly one of the men flung a sack over his head, and he was thrown to the ground and, although he struggled hard, quickly bound. His assailants then rifled his pockets, taking from him £110 in £1 notes, £40 in 10s. notes, £20 in silver, and 5s. in copper, a book of records, a private pocketbook, containing £7 (his own property), and three cheques.

The robbers overlooked a pocket that contained two £5 notes, part of the wages bill. They left the spot hurriedly, leaving their victim bound, but in twenty minutes he had freed himself. He reported the "hold up" to the railway officials, and within half an hour of the attack the Civic Guards had the roads all over the country watched, but no arrests were made.

In his struggle Mr. Byrne sustained several bruises, as well as suffering from shock, and had to be medically treated.

It was evident that the robbers had considerable local knowledge, as the hour at which Mr. Byrne usually passed through the tunnel had been changed within the past three weeks.

GIFT TO THE POPE.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST ROSARY.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
From Our Own Correspondent.
ROME, Sunday.

The world's largest Rosary, destined to become one of the curiosities of Rome, was presented to the Pope to-day by German-speaking pilgrims from Upper Italy, who were once Austrian subjects.

The Rosary is fifteen feet long, and each huge bead has been carved by artists who have represented in this fashion the story of the Saviour from the birth to the resurrection.

The Rosary now reposes in the Pope's library.

PARIS MOTOR SMASH.

IRISH VISITOR INJURED.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
From Our Own Correspondent.
PARIS, Sunday.

Mrs. Ethel McCormick, of Dublin, was taken to a private hospital at Versailles last night.

She was in a motor car when it swerved in order to avoid a cyclist, and was crashed into by another car going in the opposite direction. The occupants of both cars were injured. Mrs. McCormick sustained severe contusions to her shoulder, but her condition is not serious. She was able to telephone to her hotel, asking that her luggage should be sent to her at the hospital.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS' STRIKE.

POSITION OF CONTRACTORS.

The strike of the members of the Electrical Trades Union, as a result of which over one hundred electricians ceased work on Friday last in the Dublin contract shops, remains unchanged. The strike has been caused by the refusal of members of the Electrical Union to work in shops where members of the Irish Engineering Industrial Union are employed, and no questions of wages or conditions of employment are involved.

The electrical contractors are willing to carry on their work with trade union labour, but they cannot support the action of the Electrical Trades Union (Dublin) in refusing to work with members of another recognised trade union, and, at the same time, excluding electrical work from admission to their union, except on payment of entrance fees amounting to £25, and £50 in some cases. Contractors, as a result of the dispute, have been put to considerable loss and inconvenience, and they hope that public opinion will help in putting an end to such a dislocation in the industry, and the consequent unnecessary increase in unemployment in the city.

RED PLOT IN THE BALKANS.

SOFIA HUNT FOR COMMUNISTS.

MANY KILLED.

CONSCRIPTION OF 10.000 MEN.

KING'S ESCAPE.

OUTRAGE PLANNED BY SOVIET AGENTS.

ACCORDING to the Bulgarian Legation in Berlin, the Sofia Cathedral outrage, which resulted in deaths and injuries to about 2,000 people, was only part of a plot for a general Balkan revolt, which was scheduled to begin this month. It is declared that preparations have been going on for months, inspired by the Soviet.

The revolution was to start in Bulgaria, and to spread thence into Macedonia, Serbia and Rumania. It is declared that every detail of the proposed revolt was planned by Moscow's agents.

According to the Matin, the President and Vice-President of the Central Communist Committee, the latter an ex-officer of Engineers named Minkoff, is said to have placed an infernal machine in the Cathedral. The fuse itself was lighted inside the Cathedral by an individual disguised as a student.

Almost all the leaders of the Communist movement are at present under lock and key.

Several leaders of the illegal Executive Committee of the Communists, when discovered in hiding in Sofia, were shot by persons maddened by the fact that relatives of theirs had been killed in the explosion.

Captain Gepie Krotneff, who is alleged to have procured the explosives, committed suicide, and his wife is said to have been killed by the Communists in order to prevent her betraying the details of the plot.

Although the Bulgarian Government is so far master of the situation in the capital, the revolutionaries prevail in many of the country districts, where a regular war of extermination is going on. Thousands of arrests have been made in Sofia and other parts of Bulgaria.—The Daily Telegraph Athens Correspondent.

The British members of Parliament, Colonel Wedgwood, Colonel Malone and Mr. Mackinder, arrived in Sofia last Saturday to study the situation.

The Government is calling out three thousand new volunteers, and is taking steps to obtain the calling up of new contingents, amounting to 10,000 volunteers, recruited by conscription.

KING'S ESCAPE.

BOMB PLACED CLOSE TO THE THRONE.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
From Our Own Correspondent.
SOFIA, Sunday.
(By Courier to Belgrade.)

The destruction of the Cathedral during the Funeral Services of General Georgie was a direct attempt on the life of King Boris, planned by the peasant Communists, in pursuit of a general policy laid down for them by the Third International. It was only chance which kept King Boris away from the Cathedral at the fatal moment.

THE KING'S ESCAPE.

He had already declared that he would be present at the funeral ceremony. A throne had been erected directly under the main dome of the church. At the last moment, however, he decided to attend the funeral of his chief huntsman, which was taking place in a little church in the suburbs. He sent General Davido as his personal representative to the Cathedral ceremony. The body of the General was blown to bits.

The bomb exploded close to the throne, and most of those killed were within a short distance of the Royal chair. Others lost their lives when the dome of the south wall caved in, burying them under a mass of stone and wreckage.

TRIAL OF SUSPECTS.

The Military Courts organised by Royal Decree have begun their work. The trial of the suspects arrested immediately after the explosion will be pushed through to a quick conclusion, and fitting punishment meted out under military law.

The Communists have done themselves damage with the people, which they probably will never be able to repair. A wave of rage has swept the land.

The sharpest measures have been taken by the Government to wipe out Communism in Bulgaria. The carrying of weapons has been forbidden to all except troops and police. Railway travel is permitted only with proper passes. A censorship has been placed on the telephone and telegraph.

The city of Sofia is quiet to-day. Few street cars are operating, and motor cars have practically disappeared. Most of the business houses were closed yesterday.

Meanwhile the Bulgarian Government is making efforts to clean up the Communist nests abroad, where Bulgarian Bolshevik emigrants plot and plan outrages, and send representatives to Sofia to carry them out.

SOVIET PLOTTERS IN TURKEY.

ZINOVIEFF'S ORDERS FOR BALKAN REVOLUTION.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
From Our Own Correspondent.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Saturday.

The revolutionary campaign in Bulgaria has been directed from the branch office of the Communist International in the Soviet Embassy at Constantinople. In the early part of January, Zinovieff ordered the branch to make a supreme effort to establish Peasant Soviet Republics in Bulgaria and Macedonia during March and April.

"I will only receive ten million gold roubles from the Soviet Government in the first three months of the year," Zinovieff wrote to the Constantinople branch. "I am so hopeful of the revolutionary movement in Bulgaria and Macedonia that I am sending you four of my ten millions for an intensified campaign in these countries during March and April, although this forces us to abandon important work in China for several months."

At the same time, Zinovieff forwarded plans of the Communist International's military staff, which have been drawn up for a general uprising in Bulgaria and Macedonia. These plans included the dynamiting of public buildings. They explain that, from a Communist point of view, Bulgaria was the key of control in the Balkans.

The Communist International, exclusively financed by the Soviet Government, has had a big propaganda establishment at the Soviet Embassy in Constantinople for several years, although the propaganda staff has been carefully camouflaged as diplomatic personnel.

The Communist International, not only shelters under the Soviet Embassy, Consulate Merchant Marine and Commercial Agencies in Constantinople, but has the privilege of using the Soviet diplomatic pouch, and sends agents anywhere as diplomatic couriers.

The Turkish police have already ignominously expelled many Communist propagandists without official investigation.

LATE NEWS.

SOFIA OUTRAGE.

SOVIET INTRIGUE.

The Times observes in a leading article:—Sofia has been plunged into mourning by one of the most appalling outrages which have disfigured the savage history of revolutionary Communism. Following hard upon the attempt on the life of King Boris and the discovery of a plot to organise a Communist insurrection in North-Western Bulgaria, this crime confirms the belief that the Pan-Balkan Communist Union, which is simply a political department of the Third International, has resolved to make a bold bid this spring for the establishment of a Soviet Government or Governments in Bulgaria.

Clearly the Bulgarian Government requires strong support in the present crisis. Its request for a temporary increase of the Army has already been favourably entertained by the Conference of Ambassadors in Paris, who have sanctioned the enlistment of 3,000 recruits. Last Friday, Colonel Kalfoff, the Foreign Minister, appears to have requested the Inter-Allied Organisation in Bulgaria for permission to raise a still larger number of soldiers. The majority of the Allied representatives are believed to have approved. The consent of the Conference of Ambassadors is, however, required before any further increase is sanctioned. Previous requests of this nature have aroused not unnatural alarm and suspicion in Yugo-Slavia and Greece, where there is a lively recollection of the second Balkan War and of the almost fatal intervention of Bulgaria on the Turco-German side in the great European struggle. But the present situation is such as to dispel any fear that the Bulgarian Government is contemplating any military adventure. So far from being able to threaten its neighbours, it is obviously hard put to it to defend itself against internal conspiracy and Soviet intrigue.

THE DEATH OF MR. ROCHFORT MAGUIRE.

TELEGRAM FROM THE KING.

The Times says that the Hon. Mrs. Rochfort Maguire has received the following telegram from the King:—"The Queen and I are grieved to hear of the death of your husband, and assure you of our sincere sympathy in your great loss.—George R.I."

In the course of a lengthy obituary notice The Times remarks:—At Oxford Maguire had become, together with Robert Yerburg, Dunbar Barton, and Sir Charles Metcalfe, an intimate friend of an unconventional Oriel undergraduate named Cecil Rhodes, and this friendship decided his whole career. It was this inner group with which Rhodes talked most freely and whom he sought to engage for the realisation of his great ideas, the greatest of which was that of a federated Empire. It was as an Imperialist that Rhodes objected to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill of 1886, because of the exclusion of Irish representation from the House of Commons. With his usual directness he offered £10,000 to the Nationalist Party funds on the condition that Irish members should be retained at Westminster, because he "believed that Irish Home Rule would lead to Imperial Home Rule." Parnell, whom Rhodes described as "the most reasonable and sensible man I ever met," agreed, and the bargain was struck in 1888. Rhodes was, no doubt, not indifferent to the effect which his generosity might have on the attitude of the Nationalists towards his South African projects, for the prosecution of which, as well as of his political ideas, he enlisted the help of his friend Maguire. Maguire, who shared Rhodes's admiration of Parnell, became the chief connecting link between Rhodes and the Nationalist Party.

FORTUNE OF £30.000.000.

DEATH OF THE WEALTHIEST MAN IN SPAIN.

MADRID, Sunday.

Don Claudio Lopez y Bru, Marquis De Comillas, died yesterday, after a brief illness, at the age of 72 years. He inherited the ownership of the Transatlantic Espanola Steamship Company, founded by his father, as well as large holdings in coalmines and other enterprises, which made him possibly the wealthiest man in Spain. The fortune he leaves is believed to amount to nearly £30,000,000.—(Times telegram.)

A London racecourse gang at the Hampshire Hunt Point-to-Point meeting near Alton last Saturday bought up all the race cards one at a time at 1s. each from the Committee, says the Daily Mail, and refused to sell any under 2s. 6d. each. In some cases they charged 5s.

OBITUARY.

MR. EDWARD GALLAGHER.

Mr. Edward Gallagher, whose death is announced, took a prominent part in moulding the policy of the Irish Department of Agriculture almost since its foundation. At that time he was one of the few Irishmen who had technical training in agriculture, and his passing severs a link with those pioneers of agricultural education — Carroll, Clune, McWeeney, and Wright—under whom he was trained at the Albert College, Glasnevin.

For many years Mr. Gallagher was Senior Inspector, with charge of the Western Area, and it was under his inspiration that the organisation grew up, which has worked a revolution in agricultural practice in the difficult field of the Western Congested Districts. This constituted his life's main work, and that by which he will be remembered, as would be his wish, not only by those who were his colleagues, but by the agricultural community, to so many of whom he was a well-known and esteemed figure. In later years his work confined him largely to the office in Dublin, where he took a controlling part in administration. His work in connection with the Food Production campaign, to which he gave unstinted service, was particularly noteworthy.

Before entering the Department Mr. Gallagher was for many years editor of the Farmers' Gazette.

MR. J. M. M'DOWELL.

We regret to announce that Mr. John M. McDowell, solicitor, died suddenly in London yesterday. Mr. McDowell crossed to England on Tuesday morning last for a holiday in London. He was then in his usual robust state of health. He was accompanied by his wife, and on the way they were joined by Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., and Mr. John D. Nugent. All went well until Saturday night, when, returning from the theatre to their hotel, Mr. McDowell was suddenly taken ill. He was conveyed to his hotel with all possible care and speed, and a doctor and a clergyman were summoned to attend him. He died at three o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. McDowell was a well-known solicitor in Dublin. He was admitted to the solicitors' profession in 1896. He was a son of the late Mr. John McDowell, who for a time was editor of the Freeman's Journal.

Mr. Joseph Devlin and Mr. Nugent were with Mrs. McDowell when the end came. Mr. McDowell leaves eight children—four sons and four daughters.

"SUMMER" TIME.

"Summer" time came into operation yesterday, and in Dublin the change caused no confusion. Most of the public clocks had been put forward an hour overnight. The congregations at the Morning Services in some of the churches were smaller than usual—evidence that in many households the clocks were not advanced on Saturday night.

Saturday closing of the Berlin Stock Exchange during the summer months is being considered.

HINDENBURG'S POLICY.

AGAINST WARLIKE ADVENTURES.

TREATIES BINDING.

"MONARCHY NOT UNDER DISCUSSION."

"THE question of a return of the Monarchy is not under discussion" is one of the points made yesterday by Field-Marshal von Hindenburg, who had hitherto held himself aloof from the Presidential election campaign in Germany, which he is fighting against Dr. Marx.

He replied to a series of direct questions regarding his policy put to him by Reuter's Correspondent. Incidentally he declared against warlike adventures, stating that they could only end disastrously. He favours peaceful development at home and abroad.

I know the misery brought by war, and do not want any more.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

"LIKE A GRAVEN IMAGE."

HINDENBURG'S WELCOME HOME: GERMANY'S FUTURE.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
HANOVER, Sunday.

Some two thousand members of the Stalhelm and other Nationalist organisations goose-stepped past Field-Marshal von Hindenburg here this morning and enthusiastically cheered the old warrior, who stood, clad in Field-Marshal's uniform and wearing the Iron Cross and numerous other Orders, on the front door steps of his house for over an hour, saluting and bowing.

The Field-Marshal, whose first public appearance this was since his nomination as candidate in the Presidential election, gave the appearance of being still in full vigour, and stood like a graven image, without moving, for over an hour.

This evening the Field-Marshal received numerous German and foreign journalists and made a declaration of policy. In his statement he said:—

"In the darkest hour Germany showed what she is capable of accomplishing when united. The fortune was mine, with the aid of a united people, to keep the enemy from our borders. Bitter years followed. We were obliged to take over the entire burden of the unhappy ending of the war, and the fatal collapse thereby we unfortunately sacrificed unity.

"It would have been the happiest ending to my life to see us reunited in the same spirit in peaceful labour. I beg the numerous foreign Press representatives present to appreciate fully that this will be a unity unconcerned with party politics, but the outcome of a wholesome feeling of nationalism."

NOT A PARTY MAN.

"It is my determination to exert all my energy for the welfare of Germany. As President of the Reich, I will only think of my duty to strive for the best interests of my Fatherland on the basis of the constitution and Germany's present position in the world.

"I will pay no heed to any party, nor take any private interests into consideration. As a cool observer of the political developments of past years, I was led to form a false conception of the spirit and political significance of parties in States with Parliamentary government.

"Do not expect from me the programme of a party man who goes into details of political issues. It is much more important to give the German people again a foundation for political and economic efficiency. This goal cannot be attained without the restoration of German prestige in the world.

PEACEFUL AIMS.

"Our duty is to direct our entire public life and our practical political aims in such a manner that our honest endeavour for the peaceful restoration of our Fatherland, and for peaceful collaboration in the progress of the world may materialise. Herein is an important principle of German foreign policy.

"Nothing is more capable of jeopardising this peaceful object than blatant falsehoods about threatening German military reaction having inspired my candidature.

"A PLACE IN THE SUN."

"I hereby emphasise that I am not striving for more than the opponents of my candidature claim as their sole right—to ensure to the German people their sovereignty and freedom, with a place in the sun of nations. To attain this end the grave charge of our war guilt must soon be dropped.

"In the event of my election, I should not be disconcerted by current opinions and personal attacks, but strive to attain a happy future for our Fatherland. The attainment of such a goal would be the finest commemoration of all those heroes who sacrificed life or health to their faith in Germany's greatness."

WILLING TO TAKE THE OATH.

Field-Marshal von Hindenburg earlier in the day gave the following replies to written questions submitted to him by Reuter's Correspondent:—

1—Are you prepared to swear the prescribed oath, that the President will act in accordance with the Constitution, protect the laws of the Reich conscientiously, fulfil his obligations, and do justice to everybody?—I am naturally prepared to do so, for otherwise I should not have had the right to submit myself as candidate.

2—Would you prefer to see the ex-Kaiser on the Throne again rather than be President of the Republic yourself?—The question of Republic or Monarchy is at present nowhere under discussion in German politics. Personal wishes are, therefore, of no avail.

3—Are you prepared to sign the proposed security pact, guaranteeing the frontiers of France and Belgium?—The security question is at present the subject of international discussions. Therefore, I cannot intervene personally in such questions, which, in the first place, must be dealt with by the respective Governments. Naturally, I follow this important discussion with special attention.

4—Are you of opinion that the present frontiers in the East must be altered in favour of Germany? I share this opinion with all other Germans without distinction of party, but, in order not to endanger peace, the question must be settled by negotiations.

5—Will you, when President, do all in your power to see that military clauses of the Versailles Treaty are fulfilled? The Versailles

Treaty is binding for us until it is altered by a new agreement between the parties to the Treaty. The military prescriptions of the Treaty are naturally part of the fulfilment of the Treaty.

6—Will your policy towards Germany's former enemies be one of understanding and conciliation? I have already in my Easter message to the German people said I want to serve internal and external peace.

7—Are you of opinion that Germany can only gain from peaceful development at home and abroad, and that it would be foolish for Germany to indulge in warlike adventures?—I thoroughly share this opinion, and during the whole of the post-war period I always spoke against warlike adventures because they could only end disastrously.

8—Do you think that Germany is capable of waging even a defensive war against one of her neighbours?—My opinion as a military expert is that Germany is not even capable of defending herself against a small neighbouring State, for States like Poland and Czecho-Slovakia possess much bigger standing armies than we do, and are protected by military alliances, so that, in any event, we should be confronted by a Power whose armament was much superior to ours.

CANON WOODS'S VISIT.

"LIFE A TOUGH PROPOSITION."

Canon E. S. Woods, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Cambridge, preached at three Services in Christ Church, Leeson Park, Dublin, yesterday.

At a special Service for men at 4 o'clock, Canon Woods spoke of Christian and his companions as described by Bunyan in "The Pilgrim's Progress," and their selections from the three roads at the foot of the large, steep, formidable hill. Christian alone selected the middle one, which was very steep and narrow. It seemed to him, said the preacher, that there was absolutely no escape from the fact that life was a very tough proposition. It always would be a tough proposition.

The real mission of the Kingdom of God was not to make things easy. Everything of real moral and spiritual value, everything of beauty, truth and goodness that they knew in their time had been won in the face of tremendous difficulties; but Christianity, as he understood it, gave to those who were prepared to try it the right kind of attitude and spirit in which to face the problems and difficulties and dangers of human life, and Christianity taught men how to wrest out of these conditions that which would build up individual character and a great human society that would in some measure reflect the eternal mind of the everlasting purpose of God Himself.

If they would be Christ's men they must take the rough with the smooth with cheerfulness and courage. If they could catch and show the spirit of Jesus Christ, that would do more for the Kingdom of God than a dozen sermons. They should learn how to win by losing, and they should learn how to seize their chances—to see and to seize those things that were going on all round them in the spiritual world. If they could get the secret of the personal unit they would be all right, and that principle of unity which would enable them to face life they could get from the only One Who could give it to them—Jesus Christ.

The offerings were on behalf of the Protestant Orphan Society.

TRANSPORT WORKERS' UNION.

CONFERENCE IN DUBLIN.

The annual conference of the seven Dublin City branches of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union was held yesterday at York street, nearly 100 delegates attending.

Mr. John McCabe, who presided, gave an outline of the work of the Council during the past two years, and said that the attempt to smash the Union had failed completely. Those who had been stampeded some months ago were coming back again, and by the end of the present year the Transport Union would be restored to its normal strength.

It was deplorable, the Chairman added, that the city workers had only one representative in the Dail, but the result of the by-elections made them more hopeful of their candidates' success at future elections. Meanwhile, the working classes would require to show more interest in matters that vitally concerned their general welfare.

The balance sheet, presented by Mr. P. Martin, was considered satisfactory, and was adopted.

Thirty delegates were elected to the Dublin District Council, and affiliation to the Dublin Workers' Council was urged by Mr. William O'Brien, Mr. R. Maher and Mr. F. Robbins, whose views were endorsed by the conference.

A resolution congratulating the Labour M.P.'s on their success at the recent Northern elections was passed unanimously.

THE REV. J. H. ALCOCK, B.D.

The Rev. John H. Alcock, B.D., who has accepted the cure of the parish of Powerscourt (famous in the history of the Irish Church for the incumbency of the Rev. Robert Daly, subsequently Dean of St. Patrick's and eventually Bishop of Cashel), preached yesterday to a large congregation in St. Ann's Church, Dublin, of which he has been curate for upwards of seven years, a farewell sermon. Taking for his text the words "Peace be with you" from the Gospel of the day, he dealt with the subject in its various aspects and, having repeated the words of the text, paused and said: "With these words I close my ministry of seven and a-half years in this parish." Mr. Alcock then referred briefly in terms of deep sympathy and affection to the severance of his more immediate connection with the sphere in which his duty lay for a period which he regarded as one of the happiest in his life. He said that a harsh word had never been spoken to him by one of his parishioners; that from the least to the greatest he had received unvarying kindness, and that it had been his happy privilege to be associated in St. Ann's Parish with two Vicars—Dr. Day, the present Bishop of Ossory, and the Rev. J. W. Crozier, with whom he had worked in unbroken harmony and the very deepest personal affection, and to whose great gifts of heart and head he paid tribute as he bade the parishioners in very touching but simple words an affectionate farewell.

THE LATE SIR CHARLES FITZWILLIAM.

By command of the King, a Service will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 at the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace, London, in memory of the late Sir Charles Wentworth Fitzwilliam, who was for many years His Majesty's Crown Equerry. Sir Charles retired from that position several months ago, and had recently been in failing health. He died on Friday at his residence, Barnsdale, near Oakham, and will be buried at Wentworth, the seat of his nephew, Earl Fitzwilliam, to-morrow afternoon. Colonel Arthur Erskine, who succeeded Sir Charles as Crown Equerry, will go to Wentworth to-morrow to represent His Majesty at the funeral.

AUCTION ROOMS BURNED.

On Saturday night, about 10 o'clock, a fire broke out in a store the property of Messrs. Stewart and Son, Coalisland, and occupied by Messrs. Moore and M'Comb, auctioneers. The police set to work to remove the furniture. It was feared that the fire would spread to the barracks, and the police telephoned for assistance to the adjoining stations, and with help from Dungannon and Stewartstown and a plentiful supply of water the fire was extinguished at a late hour. The police had all the ammunition removed from the barrack to a place of safety.

FIRE IN A BACON FACTORY.

An outbreak of fire occurred shortly after ten o'clock on Friday night in Mr. Bernard Bennett's bacon-curing stores in William street, Dungannon. A large force of police assisted the local brigade to attack the flames, but the fire had a full grip of the premises, which were gutted.

A large quantity of bacon was destroyed.

STUMPS FOR MR. GILLIGAN.

ENGLISH CAPTAIN'S TRIBUTE TO HIS TEAM.

PROSPECTS OF 1926 TOUR.

The M.C.C. cricketers, who, under the captaincy of Mr. A. E. R. Gilligan, have been touring Australia, returned to London yesterday.

Mr. Gilligan, in an interview, said—"Our team was a happy family, and I cannot speak too highly of the magnificent manner in which one and all supported me both on and off the field."

He did not think that the results of the Test matches really represented the difference in the calibre of the Australian and English teams. At the same time, he was of opinion that with their stronger all round batting Australia were just a little better than England.

"There was no doubt that losing the toss played a big part in our defeats, for while on the whole the pitches lasted extraordinarily well, it was, nevertheless, a handicap to bat in the last innings."

He thought that there should be a toss in the first and last matches, while in the intervening three the choice should rest with either side alternately. He was most emphatic that the eight-ball over imposed a great strain on all medium-paced or fast bowlers, and especially in Australia.

Mr. Gilligan, referring to the Australians which will visit us in 1926, said: "Certainly they are somewhat deficient in bowling strength, but in Grimmett they possess a very useful and promising man. Ponsford has a wonderful eye, and hits the ball through the covers with extraordinary accuracy and power. He has a fine, free style and a very effective stroke with which he makes a lot of runs.

"Kippax is also a fine player, and it was surprising that he was not given more chances in Test cricket. Both the Richardsons, of South Australia, are first-class players. They are no relation to each other, and, while Victor is a very good field, Arthur is somewhat slow. The latter, however, possesses many strokes as a batsman, and his innings at Adelaide was worth going a long way to see."

As regards fielding, England's captain said that that was one department of the game where England was decidedly better than Australia.

Australia's batting strength in the lower half of the eleven was greater than that of England's. The real disappointments of the team, so far as batting was concerned, were Woolley and Hearne, neither of whom seemed able to get going on the important occasions.

Mr. Gilligan mentioned that he had been presented with a set of stumps mounted in silver, made from the wood of H.M.A.S. Australia. On the base is a map of Australia in silver, with the names of the members of the team inscribed on it. This was the gift of Mr. S. Hordern, and it is the intention of the team to ask the M.C.C. to accept the present as a memento of the tour.

COMMUNIST VISITOR.

MR. S. SAKLATVALA, M.P., IN DUBLIN.

Mr. S. Saklatvala, the Indian Communist member of Parliament for North Battersea, yesterday was the principal speaker at a meeting in Upper Sackville street, Dublin, organised by the Irish Workers' League. A procession was formed at Beresford place, and marched along the quay, and via Marlborough street and Parnell street into Sackville street, where a brake was used as a platform. About 500 people listened to the speaker.

A small red banner with an inscription in Russian was unfolded on the brake. It is said that this banner was a gift from the workers of Russia to the workers of Ireland. Mr. John Lawlor presided.

Mr. Bob Stewart, from Scotland, said that Easter Week, 1916, was of international significance because it had been the beginning of a revolt in the midst of the Imperial wars.

Mr. Saklatvola said that they had to fight for the freedom that gave the people free and full life in their homes without being afraid of the man who came to collect 18s. a week for the luxury of living in a rotten house. He denied that they were enemies of religion, but said that they realised the great mistake of following religion that was taught hypocritically. They wanted religion applied fairly to humanity. Ninety per cent. of the people of Great Britain were compelled to live in houses that broke every law of science.

FERMANAGH MEDICAL INSPECTORSHIP.

DUBLIN DOCTOR ELECTED.

At the election of a medical inspector by the Fermanagh Regional Committee on Saturday, under the new Education Act, there were five applicants—Dr. Todd, Maguiresbridge; Dr. Percy Johnston, Kesh; Dr. Olive Kennedy (wife of Dr. Kennedy, Portstewart), Dr. Arthur Dickson, of Frankfort avenue, Rathgar, Dublin; and Dr. Elizabeth Armstrong, of Lurgan.

Mr. James Cooper, M.P., moved the election of Dr. Dickson as a man who had served his country in France, who had been twice wounded, and was a Fermanagh man, born and bred.

Colonel Barton seconded.

Mr. Clarke, J.P., called upon the Committee to redeem its promise to those who served in the war. (Hear, hear.)

The Bishop of Clogher, who was the only member of the Committee absent, wrote that if he had been able to be present he would have voted for Dr. Dickson.

Dr. Kennedy was proposed by Mr. Geddis, B.A., and seconded by Mr. Thomas Elliott, J.P.

The Rev. A. J. Jenkins proposed Dr. Armstrong to keep her in the running.

On a poll, ten voted for Dr. Dickson and ten for Dr. Kennedy, and the Chairman (Lord Belmore, D.L.) gave his casting vote to Dr. Dickson, as he said that the Bishop, if present, would have given him his vote.

Protests against the Chairman's action were made by Mr. Kirkpatrick and Mr. Geddis, and a warm scene followed.

Dr. Dickson was then formally declared elected.

A HONEYMOON HINT.

A story told by Captain C. T. Foxcroft, Bath's M.P., at a Conservative meeting at Bath:—

"Once, in Switzerland, I met a very nice German gentleman who told me that he was on his honeymoon.

"I congratulated him and asked to be presented to the bride.

"'I am sorry,' the German replied, 'but there wasn't enough money for both, so I had to come alone.'"

CIVIC GUARDS' BAND.

A recital by the Civic Guards' Band at the Dépôt, Phœnix Park, last evening, was well patronised, and proved a very enjoyable entertainment. Under the direction of Superintendent Delaney, the bandsmen discoursed selections from Saint-Saëns, Brahms, Beethoven and Liszt, and their individual and ensemble playing was much appreciated. Stanford's "Shamus O'Brien" and an Irish Lullaby were also played. The vocalists were Miss Agnes O'Kelly and Mr. David Legge.

Personally, I went to a public school, and so missed being educated.—Mr. C. R. W. Nevinson.

IN THEATRE AND PICTURE HOUSE.

ATTRACTIONS FOR THIS WEEK.

"Tons of Money" is paying a return visit to the Gaiety Theatre this week. The story revolves merrily round a yearning for enormous wealth, and what happened when the dream came true. Ivan Leslie will appear as Aubrey Allington, inventor, and in making the most of the laughable complexities of the piece he will have the support of a company of clever artists, among whom are Ninette Raynon, William Allison and Betty Marshall.

"Wake Up" is the title of the revue at the Theatre Royal. The principal comedian, Jack Gallagher, will appear in a number of sketches. Other members of the company are Harry Wilson, tenor; "The Futurists," Billy and Doris Hanley, and the Twelve Wide-Awake Girls.

The comedians, Layton and Johnstone, who seldom appear outside London, and who are well known to all wireless enthusiasts, will appear at the Theatre Royal during the week commencing May 11th.

"The Spook Sonata" and "The Wedding Morning," performed by the Dublin Drama League, at the Abbey Theatre, last night, will be repeated this evening. The programme for the remainder of the week comprises "Fanny's First Play" (first production), by Mr. George Bernard Shaw, and "The Workhouse Ward."

"Crisps" is the title of this week's revue at the Olympia Theatre. In the cast are Dan Raynor, the Alhambra Girls, Fred. E. Taylor, the Beswick Twins, and the Syncopating Harmonics.

At the Queen's Theatre the revue, "Flickers and Flashes," will be produced. Mirth, melody and graceful dancing are said to be its chief attractions.

Owing to its popularity, "The Thief of Bagdad" is being retained at La Scala Theatre. "Captain Blood" has been booked for a further week by the management of the Metropole Cinema.

"Flirting with Love" is the principal picture at the Grafton Picture House. It deals in part with the life of a stage "star," and tells how a girl who mocked love until Cupid took his revenge, and she was married to her greatest enemy. Colleen Moore and Conway Tearle appear in leading rôles.

The Bohemian Picture Theatre, which was re-opened last evening, has arranged a splendid picture and variety programme for this week. The film is "The White Moth," showing Barbara La Marr. Mr. A. Dunn, tenor, will sing excerpts from favourite composers, and Mr. Jack Crosbie and Miss Kathleen Markey will appear in a high-class vaudeville "turn." Orchestral music and organ solos form a very pleasing part of the week's programme.

"The Gaiety Girl," to be screened at the Carlton Theatre illustrates the gay night life of London, and the revelry of the Gaiety actresses. It tells of a girl who is forced by circumstances to go on the stage, and is tricked into an odious marriage.

At the Sackville Picture House Gladys Walton appears in "Gossip" and José Collins in "The Secret Mission."

"Konigsmark," having proved a big attraction at the Grand Central Cinema, is being retained for another week.

"Daddies" is the principal picture at the Princess Cinema, Rathmines. From Thursday till the end of the week Tom Mix and his pony will appear in "Mile A Minute Romeo."

"The Last of the Duanes," from Zane Grey's well-known novel, is to be shown at the Pavilion, Kingstown. Tom Mix plays the leading part. New comedies, pictorial, etc., are also on the programme.

The annual Press Fund concert will take place in the Theatre Royal on Sunday evening next at 7.30, and, in addition to the Civic Guard Band, the following are announced to appear:—Phibsborough Musical Society, conductor, Mr. W. Brown; Miss Mamie Dingle, and Miss Terrie Owens, soprano; Miss Agnes O' Kelly, contralto; Mr. John MacDonagh's comedy sketch, "Prohibition," Mr. John MacDonagh, Mr. Lionel Day, Mr. Jimmy O'Dea; the Lyric Quartet; Miss Eileen Gunning, Miss Joan Burke, Mr. Joseph O'Neill, Mr. Irvine Lynch, Mr. David Legge, Mr. Patrick O'Toole, Mr. W. J. Lemass, Mr. Chris Bruton, Mr. C. J. Williams, Miss Terry O'Connor, violinist; Mr. W. J. Rafter whistler; "Independent" Choir, conductor, Mr. William McGauran. Miss Lucy Leenane and Mr. Vincent O'Brien will be at the piano.

To-morrow, at 2.30 o'clock, the pupils of the Misses Mullins will appear in a ballet entitled "The Silver Lining," at the Gaiety Theatre, in aid of the Orphan Fund of the Institute of Journalists.

THE ARAN ISLANDS AND CONNEMARA.

PAINTINGS BY MR. CHARLES LAMB.

In the well-lighted gallery, 7 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, there is on view an extremely interesting collection of oil paintings by Mr. Charles Lamb, A.R.H.A., one of our young and rising artists. The subjects are exclusively confined to scenes at the Aran Islands and Connemara, and it is a matter of congratulation to find our painters selecting for illustration these comparatively remote and not very widely known districts, for such canvases form and excellent and useful object-lesson to tourists and others in search of the picturesque.

• • •

Nearly all Mr. Lamb's sketches have been well chosen in point of immediate subject. There are a few figure canvases, and of these by far the most striking is (No. 11) a "Young Connemara Girl." It is a truly characteristic study, excellent in drawing, strong and forcible in colour, and quite masterful in the manner in which the expression is conveyed. The management of the light, too, falling on the folds of the rough red shawl, is noticeable, and the work conveys the impression of being absolutely true to life. On the wall immediately opposite hangs a particularly clever picture—"Back from the Strand." The three figures—fisher folk or kelp-gatherers—are strongly drawn, and the suggestion of movement is admirably conveyed.

• • •

"An Old Connemara Women" deserves to be studied for its quick, but no less subtle and impressive, treatment. The face is strong and full of character. There are quite a number of very clever "bits" of wayside scenes—a street in the quaint old Claddagh (No. 6), "A Calm Evening," "Great Man's Bay," and "Carraroe" are good examples.

• • •

No. 12, a Connemara boat leaving Aran, will appeal to anyone who has witnessed the familiar scene, and it is clear that the artist has caught with perfect precision the local spirit and suggestiveness of this scene, as of the other coast scenes he has chosen. Among these may be mentioned the Innishmore sketch, "Gathering Seaweed" and a "Big Sea, Aran." This latter is a clever transcript of the angry surge and strife of the billows, and there is an excellent counterpart in (No. 16) "The Sea Off Connemara."

FREE STATE SHIPPING DIRECTORY.

THIRD ISSUE NOW ON SALE.

The third issue of "The Merchant Shipping List and Postal Directory," relating to shipping in the Irish Free State, has now been published and may be purchased from Messrs. Eason and Son, Lower Sackville street, Dublin.

The publication should prove a handy book of reference for all shipowners, ship masters, and others interested in the Mercantile Marine Service. It contains full lists of the steamships, motor vessels, sailing vessels and fishing boats registered in the Free State, and particulars relating to staffs employed in connection with the administration of the Merchant Shipping Acts, to harbour authorities, shipping services from the ports and the docking and bunkering facilities available, the life saving arrangements round the coasts, the various lights, buoys and beacons, together with an amount of other useful information.

Shopbreaking in Donegal.—At the Newtowncunningham District Court, District Justice Walsh ordered a young man named William Dougal, of the Newtowncunningham district, a month's imprisonment, with hard labour, for breaking into a local lock-up shop and stealing a quantity of cigarettes.

FARMERS MUST CO-OPERATE.

do this, they, for their part, must do likewise. After all, it was the middle class artisan consumer that should be their guide in the breeding of their cattle even in the remotest parts of the country. What had happened in connection with butter would happen one day in connection with cattle unless they sent across to their customers a different class of beast.

In deciding on a policy they had to consider the economic factor and the requirements of the market. The total output from the cattle industry might be divided into two classes—beef cattle and dairy produce. The income from store and beef cattle was, roughly, 22 millions sterling per annum. For dairy produce, for home and export, it amounted to over eight millions per annum. This did not mean that the dairying side was of secondary importance, but if they were to develop it, they would have to improve their dairy cows, which were the basis of the cattle industry.

The improvement of the cattle industry should be considered under two aspects. First, improvement in milk yields; and secondly, improvement in their breeding qualities. Improvement of milk yields was absolutely essential if the dairying industry, as a whole, and the store cattle raising industry was to succeed. There was ample provision for all farmers who wanted to improve their cattle through the Department's schemes. There was no excuse for not improving milk yields. Progress, slow at first, was becoming more rapid.

POOR MILK YIELD.

There were now over 50,000 cows under test as regards milk yield. That, however, was only three per cent. of the total cow population of the Free State. It emphasised what remained to be done, and the Department would not be satisfied until at least 30 per cent. of the cows were under test. What they should aim at was a cow giving 800 gallons of milk per annum. It would take a number of years to attain that. Such cows would also be capable of breeding first-class beef animals. It had been demonstrated that this could be done.

Under the peculiar conditions of this country it was essential that they should have a dual purpose animal. This meant that they must select thick, short-legged cows that would have good udders and give heavy milk yields. These should be mated with bulls that were also short-legged.

BULLS TOO TALL.

The bane of cattle-breeding in this country was the number of tall bulls everywhere in use. Two of the outstanding faults in Irish cattle to-day were that they were too tall, and that they were bad over the loins and back. This made their cattle unsuitable for the high-class trade in Smithfield. Consequently, the breeding animals selected should be compact and short-legged. For this purpose they had excellent foundation stock in the non-pedigree dairy shorthorn scattered over the country, except in Kerry and along the Western seaboard. With animals bred from such stock there was no reason why they should not be exporting less than two per cent. of unsuitable animals.

Having secured a really good foundation stock they would have broken the "backbone" of the problem. It was then a matter of selecting breeding bulls. In this country they reared about 1,100,000 calves. Quarter of a million of these were destined to be dairy animals, while the remainder were intended for beef. This meant that there was a definite limit to the extent to which it would be wise to use pure dairy bulls.

After securing their position as regards dairy cattle they should use bulls that would produce the best store or beef cattle possible. Of the beef breed available, the chief were beef shorthorns, Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford. Any of these might be used, and in 95 cases out of 100 the produce would be capable of topping the Smithfield market.

THE ONLY WAY.

If there was a future in the dead meat industry it lay in the production of a type of beef that would compete with the best from elsewhere. They had to get rid of the three and the three-and-a-half years old bullock, and reduce the age of finishing to two or two-and-a-half years. The whole future of the beef industry in Ireland lay in that direction, and the sooner farmers changed their methods the better. Farmers who were not prepared to change with the times would be put out of business, so far as cattle rearing was concerned. This meant better care of young stock from the beginning, more feeding, and also more tillage. They would not turn out their cattle any better by importing more feeding stuffs.

The farmer would gain considerably by the production of more home-grown foods, and until the farmers of Ireland were prepared to grow more home-grown foodstuffs, and to convert these into high-class beef, they could not make much progress. This was the only means of saving the cattle industry of the country.

WHAT LONDON WANTS.

Mr. Reading, a cattle salesman, of Smithfield, London, said that eight million people in London drew their main supply from Smithfield. There was always a ready sale for first-class beef, which brought the top price, but there was little use in looking for a good price for big, ugly three or four-year-olds with long legs. The London butchers would not take it. At present Scottish beef ranked as first quality. It had the greatest reputation, although experienced salesmen knew that much of it was originally Irish. There was not the slightest doubt that, within a year or two, Irish meat could be improved until it ranged with the best Scotch.

The London butcher was a good judge of meat, and would recognise quality no matter where it came from. When Canadian stores came in, salesmen did not expect that they would bring good prices, but the quality was now up to the level required, and they sold well. Irish beef would do as well if the right quality was supplied. Irish cattle in the past had suffered from bad handling.

HOW TO FEED.

Professor E. J. Sheehy, of the Animal Nuitrition Section, Department of Agriculture, addressed the meeting on "The Economic Production of Beef." On many Irish farms at present they would find living skeletons of cattle. It was urged in their favour that they cost little to keep during the winter, and that they advanced rapidly when put on the grass in summer. In that respect things were better in Wexford than in most parts of the country, but it was bad economics.

If they examined the cost of production of these cattle they would find that the calf dropped in March, 1924, cost, by the time it was fifteen months old, £9. They would agree that a calf fifteen months old that had been badly wintered and was not exceptional would not fetch more than £9 in June. If kept for another year it would cost £14, and would not fetch more. They could add £5 to that as the cost of a further year. That meant that a three-and-a-half-year-old would cost £19, whereas it would probably not fetch more than £17. In other words, the animals barely paid up to two years old, and there was a loss after that age.

Fattening was a profitable alternative to that disastrous system. Many farmers held that it was impossible to fatten cattle while they were young and growing. The idea also had been held that pigs could not be fattened until they were a year old. Now they were fattened and sold at about five months.

They would have to learn to fatten cattle as the Scots did, and as was done in England and Wales. They had at the Department's stations cattle which were calved in January, 1924, and in a few weeks these would be ready for the butcher. It was possible to fatten them at any age. It was an expensive proposition, but it was a question of cost and profit.

If they took a herd of cattle in the autumn of last year and put them into a house, and divided them into two groups, feeding one as stores and fattening the others, they would find a considerable difference in their appearance in spring. If they were well-bred cattle the difference would be a wide one. Yet the extra cost of fattening would be only £4 each, whereas the extra value was twice that.

Cattle should be fed in a special way to get these results. For the first three weeks calves should be fed on new milk, for the next three they should get new milk and separated milk, and after six weeks separated milk, meals and good hay. Oats should form the basis of the meals. A very good mixture was seven parts of oats, one of linseed cake, one of palm nut cake and one of meat meal. This should be given until the calf was five months old.

Calves born after 1st June should not be let on the grass that year. It was a great mistake to neglect calves at the end of the summer. That was the time to feed them if they were to pay at eighteen months. The calf flesh should be retained, because it would be doubly expensive to bring them back into condition if they lost it.

If the farmer could get good results out of his cattle at eighteen or twenty-one months, he could predict, with almost mathematical certainty, a good profit. It was not a gamble, and gave big and small farmers alike an opportunity of producing beef economically, and with a profit that would compare favourably with the present profit on butter, eggs and cheese.

Mr. P. J. O'Connor, Instructor in Agriculture for County Wexford, said that owing to their present methods Irish beef brought from 3s. to 4s. per stone less than Scotch beef at Smithfield. He urged that a much larger percentage of cattle would be fattened in Ireland if the farmers had more storage accommodation for corn.

GOVERNMENT HELP ASKED.

Mr. M. Doyle, T.D., in proposing a vote of thanks to the speakers, said that the farmers' organisations were indirectly responsible for the various Agricultural Acts recently passed. These had been drafted as the result of the evidence given by farmers before the Agricultural Commission. A lot lay in their own hands, but they also wanted help from the Government.

Colonel C. M. Gibbon, C.M.G., seconded the motion, which was passed. He said that there was no bad market for meat of the right quality in London, and pointed out that by co-operating they could secure a marked reduction in freight and other charges.

Mr. Hogan, in reply, recommended that farmers should organise for business purposes, separating their business from their politics. He thanked the English salesman who had attended, and added that it was the business of his Department to help the farmer in whatever way it could.

Mr. M. L. Rowe presided, and a large gathering included—Senator C. J. Irwin, Alderman Corish, T.D.; Messrs. R. J. Codd, G. Devereux, E. P. Foley, N. J. Frizelle, M. J. O'Connor, James Hall, M. Cloney, J. J. O'Byrne, F. D. Hickey, M. Mathews, W. J. Jeffs (Great Western Railway), J. F. O'Hara (London, Midland and Scottish Railway), J. P. Reichell (City of Cork Steampacket Company), Reading and Cooke (Smithfield) and Spain and Dooley (Roscrea Bacon Factory).

Subsequently, the Minister for Agriculture visited the works of the Wexford Engineering Company, Limited, and Messrs. Philip Pierce and Company, Limited.

QUEEN'S COUNTY HUNT BALL.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION.

(From Our Reporter.)

The Queen's County Hunt Ball, which was held at Emo Park, Portarlington, last Friday night, was a brilliant and successful function. The whole mansion was very kindly placed at the disposal of the Committee by the Earl of Portarlington, who has not been in residence there for some years.

About 200 persons attended, and the arrangements were admirably made by Mr. Harry M. Smith, Secretary of the Ball, and an energetic committee, who left nothing undone to cater for the comfort and enjoyment of visitors.

The ballroom was tastefully decorated with greenhouse flowers, in pots, and cut flowers. Over the chimneypiece were placed two foxes' masks, trophies of the chase, recording runs with the Queen's County Hounds—one from Derryfore to Orchard, which lasted two hours and 45 minutes, and the other from Loughhill to Skehane, in which there was a splendid run of three hours and 37 minutes. There were also hunting horns; a huntsman's cap, hunting crop and spurs, and other emblems of the ever popular sport.

The catering was in the hands of Messrs. Mills, Merrion row, Dublin. Dancing commenced about 10 o'clock, and was continued until about 6 o'clock on Saturday morning, with intervals for refreshments. The reunion was an extremely sociable and happy one, and all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Among those present were:—Sir John Lumsden and Miss Lumsden, Baron de Robeck, Colonel and Mrs. Folliot, Doctor Hogan and Miss Rice, Dr. Kilbride and Mrs. and Miss Coster, Colonel and Miss Magan, Mr. Gibbon and the Misses Coe, Thomas S. NORTHERN POSTAL WORKERS.

CONFERENCE AT BELFAST.

A conference of delegates to the Ulster Council of the Union of Post Office Workers, was held in Belfast on Saturday under the Presidency of Councillor M'Creanor (Lisburn).

In his report the Secretary referred to statements which had lately been in circulation regarding the transfer of the postal services to the control of the Ulster Government. These statements, he said, had no foundation, being based on uninformed deductions from routine discussions on financial adjustments between the two Governments. As a matter of fact there had been no consideration of the matter since 1921, when it merely formed an item in the general adjustments.

He also referred to the injustice inflicted on the ex-Service members of the permanent staffs of the Civil Service, particularly those of the post office, by the agreement recently concluded between the Treasury and the Association of ex-Service Temporary Civil Servants. As a result of this agreement, he said, obtained by a minority organisation through political pressure, the position and prospects of permanent ex-Servicemen had been worsened, and the small advantage gained for the temporary staff had been at the expense of the ex-Service members of the established staffs. More would be heard of the matter on the National Whitley Council of the Civil Service.

A discussion took place on the question of the Union's demand for increased wages, and it was unanimously decided to support the executive in its demand.

THE SERVING OF WRITS.

PROCESS-SERVER DISMISSED.

At the Clonmel Circuit Court, Judge Sealy spoke strongly about the case of a process-server named Corcoran, against whom a complaint had been made regarding the service of civil bills by the Corporation.

He said that Corcoran had sworn that he had served all the processes, and he had since practically admitted that what he had sworn first was false, and it seemed to him (the Judge) false to his knowledge. That was a terrible state of affairs, and it would cost the Corporation a large sum in costs, and Corcoran had thrown disrepute on the Court.

An officer of the Court should know his duty better than that. He intended to send the papers to the Attorney-General or to have proceedings taken against Corcoran for perjury, but in fuller consideration he thought it better to leave the matter as it stood, except that Corcoran could not continue as an officer of the Court. That could not be tolerated for a moment, and he, therefore, dismissed Corcoran as a process-server to the Court.

BROADCASTING IN THE FREE STATE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Wireless broadcasting is not in the Free State receiving the attention it demands. In the short time since its discovery developments have been so great, and appreciation of its possibilities so widespread that already numerous millions of people in all parts of the world are awake to the fact that wireless telephony is no longer merely a scientific novelty, but has become a factor of civilisation. As an instrument of education its importance, if properly conducted, is incalculable, especially in a country with a large and scattered rural population. Not only may lectures and addresses on agriculture and other educational subjects be broadcast to classes in schools, but also to individuals in their homes.

The farmer may at his home receive daily weather forecasts, market prices, seasonal hints and suggestions, the correct time, and keep in touch with current events, while the monotony of the winter evenings may be relieved by vocal and instrumental music of the highest class. In the Free State, under favourable conditions of the atmosphere, the programmes broadcast from the English and some of the Continental stations may be enjoyed. Excellent, however, as they are, they will not bring us very far. They do not cater for the tastes or needs of this country, nor are these stations designed to serve listeners so distant as we are. We are, on that account, depending on attenuated waves, requiring delicate detectors and high amplification—which means high cost to the listener and, at best, reception accompanied by noise which, under not infrequent unfavourable atmospheric conditions, becomes intolerable. Those who have never listened in where only cheap crystal sets are required do not know broadcasting at its best.

It is time that we had a broadcasting station of our own. There are obvious objections to State management of such an undertaking, while the dangers, if it is allowed to fall into hands merely for exploitation on commercial lines, are unthinkable. We have, however, the Royal Dublin Society. Could not its Council be induced to undertake this great service to agriculture, education, and social well-being? The work would appear to be wholly in keeping with its aims and splendid records.

The Society has been the pioneer of so many movements which have borne fruit in science and agriculture, and has sought to afford education and encouragement, especially to rural communities, that it would seem that it has here at hand an instrument of enormous power for the extension of its great work. The Society has an efficient organisation, while its Council and committees include many men distinguished in science and art no less than in agriculture.

There should be little, if any, difficulty in arranging for co-ordinated action with Government, educational and other agencies. The Society's splendid work in fostering musical taste and its recitals have become noteworthy. The broadcasting of these recitals and of the afternoon lectures would have widespread beneficial results.—Yours, etc.,

HUGUENOTS IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Touching your interesting article about Portarlington, the title of Earl of Galway was conferred upon a Huguenot, the Marquis of Ruvigny, for having retrieved the day at Aughrim by leading a body of horse through the morass and turning the left wing of the Irish Army at the moment when St. Ruth was waving his hat and exclaiming that the English should be beaten back to Dublin. (Macaulay's "History," Vol. II., p. 756.) Macaulay gives the following account of his father:—"The Marquess of Ruvigny had been during many years an eminently faithful and useful servant of the French Government. So highly was his merit appreciated at Versailles that he had been solicited to accept indulgences which scarcely any other heretic could by any solicitation obtain. Had he chosen to remain in his native country, he and his household would have been permitted to worship God privately according to their own forms. But Ruvigny rejected all offers, cast in his lot with his brethren, and at upwards of eighty years of age quitted Versailles, where he might still have been a favourite, for a modest dwelling at Greenwich. That dwelling was, during the last months of his life, the resort of all that was most distinguished among his fellow-exiles. His abilities, his experience and his munificent kindness made him the undisputed chief of the refugees. His sister had been Countess of Southampton, and he was uncle of Lady Russell. His two sons, both men of eminent courage, devoted their swords to the service of William. The younger son, who bore the name of Caillemot, was appointed colonel of one of the Huguenot regiments of foot. . . . Ruvigny lived just long enough to see these arrangements (for the Irish campaign) complete."

In a footnote Macaulay says that there is some interesting information about Ruvigny and about the Huguenot regiments in a narrative written by a French refugee of the name of Dumont. The narrative was in manuscript and was lent to Macaulay by Dr. Vignoles, Dean of Ossory. Where is that manuscript now? I think it is little more than forty years since Dean Vignoles died, and his son, Chancellor Vignoles, lived for many years after. It should be printed.

Professor Flinders Petrie shows how France still suffers from the expulsion of the Huguenots, which "drained it of the active middle-class minds, and left the great gap in the continuity of sympathy which made the Revolution possible. The later expulsion or extermination also of the active upper-class minds drained that land of nearly all the hereditary ability of the race." The same thing is happening in Ireland to-day.

The French records at Portarlington, of which your correspondent writes, ought to be published. I have the old Service Book of the French Church. The first forty-eight pages are missing and some of the last. It has the "Pseavmes" in verse, set to music. The notes are diamond-shaped.—Yours, etc.,

"FOREIGN GAMES."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I have played cricket, I have played Rugby, I have played "Soccer" and I have played Gaelic Athletic Association football. I still exercise with boys, and especially at cricket. Hence it is scarcely necessary for me to state that I entirely agree with the arguments and comments in your article on the conduct of the Gaelic Athletic Association. It is a narrow, niggard and, from one standpoint, a nasty, bigoted view of sport. In no other civilised country would such intolerant and immoderate conduct be condoned or commended.

"To impose suspension for three months on members attending matches, in any of these condemned sports, even as spectators," is not only unreasonable, but, in my humble estimation, unjust. Does this command comprise attendance at even internationals in England, Scotland and Wales? I have spoken to many men, members of the G.A.A., who said to me that such illogical, illiberal spirit would isolate not only Irish sport, but Irish sportsmen—and we are supposed to be the best—from the world. Why should we not cultivate what we Irishmen have not yet learned—to agree to differ among ourselves and to acknowledge that others have opinions and principles as good as our own, even in sport? I believe "Soccer" to be the most scientific game in the football world, but I do not expect every Irishman to agree with me. Yet how thin is the line dividing "Soccer" from G.A.A. football.—Yours, etc., "Celtic."

COACHBUILDING AND PROTECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—It is rumoured that Mr. Blythe, Minister for Finance, will introduce in his next Budget a 25 per cent. tariff on coachbuilding materials coming into the Free State—viz., bent wood such as shafts, panels, wings and wheels. It is a well-known fact that there is no harder hit industry in the Free State than coach-building. This tax may help a few firms of benders, with an interest in coach-building, but it will be at the expense of hundreds of coach-builders in this country. We must assume that this tax will be paid by the coach-builder to someone, whether he uses home or foreign materials. He may try to recover it from his customer; but the coachbuilder's customer is, as a rule, the poor, struggling farmer, and he cannot pay the extra price. Even at the present price it is nearly impossible to make a sale. Thus the outcome may be a direct tax on the coachbuilder, which will knock the industry out of existence.—Yours, etc.,

The narrative was in manuscript d was lent to Macaulay by Dr. Vignoles, ean of Ossory. Where is that manuscript w? I think it is little more than forty ars since Dean Vignoles died, and his son, ancellor Vignoles, lived for many years er. It should be printed.

Professor Flinders Petrie shows how France ll suffers from the expulsion of the guenots, which "drained it of the active ddle-class minds, and left the great gap the continuity of sympathy which made Revolution possible. The later expulsion extermination also of the active upperss minds drained that land of nearly all hereditary ability of the race." The same ng is happening in Ireland to-day.

The French records at Portarlington, of ich your correspondent writes, ought to be blished. I have the old Service Book of the ench Church. The first forty-eight pages missing and some of the last. It has the Pseaumes" in verse, set to music. The tes are diamond-shaped.—Yours, etc.,

COACHBUILDING AND PROTECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It is rumoured that Mr. Blythe, nister for Finance, will introduce in his t Budget a 25 per cent. tariff on coachlding materials coming into the Free State iz., bent wood such as shafts, panels, ngs and wheels. It is a well-known fact t there is no harder hit industry in the ee State than coach-building. This tax may p a few firms of benders, with an interest coach-building, but it will be at the expense hundreds of coach-builders in this country. e must assume that this tax will be paid by coach-builder to someone, whether he uses me or foreign materials. He may try to over it from his customer; but the coachlder's customer is, as a rule, the poor, uggling farmer, and he cannot pay the ra price. Even at the present price it is arly impossible to make a sale. Thus the come may be a direct tax on the coachlder, which will knock the industry out of stence.—Yours, etc.,

CHARGE AGAINST A RATE COLLECTOR.

At a Special Court at the Civic Guard barracks, Carrick-on-Shannon, on Saturday, before Mr. M. McGrath, Peace Commissioner Charles Pinkman, Carrick, Keshcarrigan, a former collector of the Leitrim County Council, who was taken into custody by the Royal Ulster Constabulary at Enniskillen and handed over to the Guards, was charged with having embezzled a sum of £349 15s. 3d., the property of Leitrim County Council.

Only evidence of arrest was given by Guard Thomas Brown, who stated he took the accused into custody at Blacklion on the previous day.

Pinkman was remanded to the next District Court at Carrick-on-Shannon, bail being measured in £400 and two surities of £200 each.

GETTING IT IN THE NECK.

At this time of the year many people—particularly men—suffer from skin eruptions in the form of boils on the neck. To prevent the appearance of these unsightly and painful eruptions a little Gibsol Ointment should be gently rubbed into the back of the neck each night before retiring. Stiff collars, with frayed edges, must not be worn. If this advice is followed there is little danger of an outbreak. Gibsol is sold by chemists everywhere.—(Advt.)

THE DUBLIN DRAMA LEAGUE.

The Dublin Drama League, last night in the Abbey Theatre, produced with great success "The Spook Sonata," by August Strindberg, and "The Wedding Morning," by Arthur Schnitzler. "The Spook Sonata" is one of the later pieces of dramatic work by Strindberg, having been written in 1907. Realism and phantasy are strangely blended in it, and the poetry of thought is mixed with the common-place in a way that presents something weird. Paul Ruttledge was an excellent study of the Student. Miss Shelah Richards acted with grace in the part of the Young Lady. Gabriel J. Fallon as Old Hummel and Miss Maeve McMorrough as the Mummy were clever exponents of their characters. All, indeed, were deserving of praise. The cast was completed by Miss Annie Evans, Miss May Craig, Miss Joan Sullivan, Miss Dorothy Lynd, Miss Christine Hayden, and Arthur Shields, F. J. McCormick, Tony Quinn, M. J. Scott, and P. J. Carolan.

"The Wedding Morning," a comedy in one act, was well played by Miss Margot Brunton, and Arthur Ward, R. H. Colwill and Pablo Quesada.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

THE GUINEAS.

CAN OOJAH BEAT PICAROON?

TAPIN UNCERTAIN.

STABLE OF PROMISING FILLIES.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Sunday Night.

When racing was over at Newmarket on Friday last I went to see the horses trained by Dawson Waugh at Somerville Lodge, where there is stabled a priceless collectino of two-year-old fillies. Of most immediate interest, however, was Oojah, the dark chestnut son of Bachelor's Double and Confey, who was bred by Mr. J. J. Maher. This was a very handsome and a very good colt last season, but I was a little surprised at the very remarkable improvement that even he had made, and on looks alone I would take him now before either Picaroon or Zionist.

He has grown better than either, and when he goes into the paddock before the Two Thousand I think he will command both these. There was a general idea gathered from some of his performances last season that he would not stay. I do not think for a moment that this suggestion is entertained by his trainer, for in his home work he has never suggested anything of the kind, rather the contrary, in fact.

I would not be so rash as to say that he will beat Picaroon in the Guineas next week, but he will assuredly beat a great many of the others. He runs for the Esher Cup at Sandown on Thursday, and I expect him to give a foretaste of his quality by winning there under his nine stone.

Of the fillies of Somerville Lodge it would be difficult to write adequately unless one had a whole page at one's disposal. I imagine that no stable has sheltered such a group since Taylor had that wonderful batch that belonged to the late Lord Manton—Two Step, Lady Juror, Sister-in-Law, Tetrabazzia, etc. Between them they cost a small fortune, and they may be worth a bigger fortune at the end of this season. No one could help lingering long in the box of Belle Sœur, the superb bay by Son-in-Law out of Agacella, who was bred at Sledmere, and made the second highest price, 6,100 guineas, of any filly sold at Doncaster, her purchaser being the American millionaire, Mr. J. W. Corrigan. She has grown into a filly of the rarest quality, who, if she goes on as she has done since she came to Newmarket, may be anything.

Waugh did great things in the past two seasons with a Son-in-Law filly, by name Straitlace. It would be idle to institute comparisons between them or indulge in prophecy, and I will only say now that Belle Sœur will win races. Roman Maid is another owned by Mr. Corrigan, by The Tetrarch out of Curia, also Sledmere bred, who cost 3,500 guineas. She, too, is a magnificent specimen of a racehorse in the making.

Then Sir Edward Hulton has a truly beautiful dark-brown daughter of Swynford and Moness called Moquette, who has some of the Swynford characteristics that were seen in Tranquil, and another massive filly by Gainsborough out of Mabella, bought from Lady James Douglas for 3,100 guineas at Doncaster, who has been named Malonie. Orison is a charming daughter of Friar Marcus and Orlass, who is more forward than most of the others, and Ribstone is a beautiful, but more backward, bay by Blink out of Russet. The only one of the fillies in this yard who does not seem quite to have realised the promise she gave in the sale ring is Parth's half-sister, Withey, who has not grown a great deal, and who, in the opinion of her trainer, needs a lot of time.

STRAITLACE AND JEDDART.

I have not seen this year the two-year-old fillies trained by Mr. R. C. Dawson for the Aga Khan, but if he has a better collection than those at Somerville Lodge he is a fortunate man. To look at Waugh's is a sight for sore eyes.

Dawson Waugh has always been particularly successful with fillies, for he won a Derby with Tagalie, and what he did last year and the previous season with Straitlace is too recent to be recalled. This trainer told me, by the way, that when Straitlace left the yard to go to the stud in the early winter, Jeddart, who was her constant travelling companion, was inconsolable for fully a month, and used to search the heath for her when out with the string. The fact that he went and rubbed his nose against her when she came back, after being beaten by St. Germans in her last race, supplied some people with a convincing proof that horses are sometimes capable of human sympathy. While on this note, I may mention that the superstitions in Waugh's yard are quite confident that Oojah will win the Guineas and the Derby, the omen being the fact that a black cat chose his box in which to be delivered of her kittens a few weeks ago.

It is seldom that in Craven week people have been able to form such definite ideas about classic races, but they have a very clear idea now that Picaroon will win both the Guineas and the Derby. For my own part I could not advance a single reason why he should not do so. His performance in the Craven Stakes was without a flaw, and it impressed no one more than the trainers of other prominent classic candidates. The style in which he ran away from Ethnarch and El Cacique must have set their trainer—Jarvis—thinking seriously how much his Derby hope, St. Becan, would have to be in front of them to beat Picaroon.

The hopes that Mr. Dawson cherishes of Zionist also may not have been so high after he had seen the Manton colt win in such effortless fashion. There is no doubt that Picaroon stays well, and, that being so, it is difficult to see why he should be beaten. Solario may have been backward in his trainer's opinion, but he will have to make a lot of improvement to beat the Manton colt in the next six weeks. There may be a "dark" one, though this season there are fewer reports than usual of such animals. The French horse, Ptolemy, or some other may be exceptional, but when one relies on the known form, it points clearly to Picaroon, and the market on the Derby very clearly expresses that opinion.

It is not a little strange that Beppo, in his old age and after a career at the stud that was not altogether brilliant should have sired such a one as Picaroon. I suppose, for part of the secret, we have to go back to his maternal great grand dam, Galicia, the great mare who laid the foundations of the racing fortunes of the late Mr. "Fairie" Cox, whose stud fell at his death to his brother, the present owner of Picaroon. "Picaroon," says the Special Commissioner, "is a great horse, with the priceless Blink Bonny tap root, and you cannot have better than that," and I imagine that at the moment it seems good enough for most people.

PICAROON'S CHANCES.

All the same, on looks no one would suspect Picaroon of being a great horse by comparison with some of the great horses that have won classic races in the past quarter of a century. Even the critical eye does not light on him instinctively as one who looks good enough to win classic races; for he does not quite possess the grand manner. Still, in detail, he is difficult to fault, and when he is in action he is magnificent. I suppose if he had been in some stables and had come into the paddock in Craven week looking so forward in condition many people would have said he had been hurried in his preparation, but, as it would be entirely contrary to the temperament of Taylor ever to hurry a horse, it is assumed that Picaroon has just progressed normally to his present condition, and that he will go on progressing in the same manner up to the Derby.

Minds are now becoming occupied with the City and Suburban, to be run at Epsom on Wednesday next. During the last week the position of the French colt, Tapin, has been undergoing some strange mutations. First he was favourite. Then he was knocked out to nearly double the price, only to be backed all over the country yesterday morning, and to close again a strong favourite at 6 to 1. Donoghue is in Paris to-day, and is understood to be seeing the aged owner of Tapin in order to get a decision whether or not the colt is to run on Wednesday. Some people seem to be presuming that M. Eknayan's decision will be in favour of running, judging by the money that was laid out yesterday. I expect that he will run and that he will about win, for I take no account of his performance in the Newbury Cup, where the slow beginning destroyed his chance.

I saw Sansovino galloped with Pharos early last Wednesday morning, and he went so well that I thought he might be sent for the race. Yesterday morning the pair were galloped together again, and Pharos rather easily beat the Derby winner by about four lengths, I should say. The general opinion at Newmarket is that neither has done enough work to give either a chance in the race. If Sansovino ran on Wednesday and had the confidence of his trainer I think he would beat Tapin. Beary rides Verdict, who is well, and her trainer, W. Waugh, thinks a good deal of her chance.

CONDOVER COMES FROM FRANCE.

Bright Knight will give way to Baton Rouge, who is fancied. Condover comes from France again to run. Evander, Cockpit and Greek Bachelor are all fancied, but it is likely that the race will go to one of the horses with pretentions to class at the top of the handicap. Verdict on a memorable occasion beat the hope of France in the Cambridgeshire and she may well do so again on Wednesday, but my present impression of the race is that it will be won by TAPIN.

The Great Metropolitan, to be run on Tuesday, is nowadays but a moderate event, which often falls to a moderate horse who stays. The Esher Cup, on Thursday at Sandown, will be a much better race, for there are several nice three-year-olds engaged. I believe that Mr. R. C. Dawson's filly Blanc-Mange, a half-sister by Hainault to Blandford, is fancied, but she would have to give a better performance than at Newbury to beat, for example, Lomondside. Dignity is also very well fancied, but I expect that COJAH will give him and all the others the weight and win.

In the Tudor Stakes on Friday Mr. Gilpin may quite likely run his promising colt St. Croix. This one is better at home than Spelthorne, who has run well while backward in two races this year. Spelthorne's preparation is being timed, particularly for the Irish Derby.

After writing at such length about the great and the nearly great horses it would be in the nature of an anti-climax to devote space to describing the performances of the comparatively moderate animals who ran at Alexandra Park yesterday afternoon, where the racing was poor. The winner of the last race, a maiden plate, was Mat McGlue, who brought off an outside chance for Mr. J. Cooper, whose face is familiar on the rails at the principal Irish meetings. Every winter at St. Moritz Mr. Cooper indulges in the barbaric game of curling, which has no connection with hurling, and is a plus four man, or whatever the Scottish method of handicapping at the game is.

Last year he organised a team to play a jockeys' team captained by Mat McGee, the American who rides in France. Cooper's team was hopelessly beaten. All their shots were sliced or foozled. Their stones, or stanes, or whatever the instrument of play is, did everything except what they were expected to, and the players could not understand it at all. They did, however, when they discovered that the ingenious McGee had smeared the business side of their stones, or stanes, with glue, which makes a bad contact with ice. The discomfited curler had a two-year-old then without a name, so he called him Mat McGlue, to get his own back on the jockey.

To-morrow's racing is at Edinburgh, where the sport will be mostly confined to horses trained in Scotland and in the North. PTARMIGAN roes from Newmarket for the Montrose Stakes, which he should win. CYZARA, on the strength of his second to Haine at Newcastle, has a good chance for the Buccleuch Handicap, and I expect MARITIME to win the Trial Selling Plate.

GALTEE MORE.

CATTERICK

MISS CONNIE'S GOOD WIN.

STRUMA GELDING WELL BEATEN.

The second day's card at Catterick proved a big attraction and though the weather was on the chiliy side the conditions remained fair to the end. Though none of the youngsters saddled for the Richmond Plate had earned winning brackets, Girls' School and Larret had run sufficiently well in their outings to cause backers to select the pair to fight out the finish. A late order came for Kensington Cottage, and the Weyhill youngster justified the confidence by proving an easy winner. L. Brown, the rider of the favourite, Girls' School, was fined £5 for disobedience at the post.

The Brough Hall Apprentice Handicap was a costly affair for backers, in that the favourite, Dark Fox, lost so much ground at the start that he never had a chance. Minikin's Pride looked like scoring, until Demonicus came along the straight, and at the distance the issue was settled in favour of Lord Lonsdale's horse.

The Struma gelding was a warm fancy for the Oran Plate, but Taylor was early busy on him and at the distance was well beaten by Bold Peggy.

Of the four runners for the Grove Handicap Miss Connie certainly had a healthy look, and backers stood by the Doncaster-trained mare, who scored in ready fashion, the victory giving J. Taylor his eighth winning ride of the week.

The Manor House Plate was won by Brave Lassie by two lengths from Benedict. The meeting concluded with the Bainesse Plate, which fell to Magic Flower, to give Vasey his second winner and advance Taylor's score another peg.

LEOPARDSTOWN.

BACKERS' BAD DAY.

FOUR ODDS-ON CHANCES BEATEN.

L'AINE'S SMART WIN.

The paucity of runners notwithstanding the racing at Leopardstown on Saturday was always interesting, but backers fared disastrously, as will readily be understood when it is mentioned that four odds-on chances were bowled over. Perhaps the biggest disappointment was the failure in the chief event, the Foxrock Plate, of Lorient, a good-looking filly, trained by Behan for Major Dixon, whose Miramichi had won the Greer Plate at Phœnix Park the previous week. She, however, ran somewhat green, and was relegated into third place by L'Aine and May Pan Out, the former running on gamely under pressure to gain a meritorious victory. A furlong out the favourite momentarily flattered, but weakened a little further on, and L'Aine, responding generously to the call of his rider, won in the style of a promising colt.

Although reduced to the dimensions of a match, the Paddock Hurdle Plate was by no means devoid of interest, and in a rattling finish Petit Beau, on whom Joseph Canty rode a very well-judged race, prevailed over Dizira, and thus made some amends to the veteran, Captain G. Maher, for many failures. A field of ten contested the Silverpark Plate, for which Carrif, Oppressormore, and Maytoi were most fancied, and it was good picking albeit in the end the first-named won very comfortably indeed. When Ballyboley dropped out, after at one time holding a commanding lead, Oppressormore loomed large in the picture, but appeared to lose ground at the turn into the straight, and once they were fairly in the line for home Carrif took command of the situation, and made light of the efforts of Maytoi and Brown Valentine, the latter of whom made up a lot of ground in the closing stages, to catch her.

As was presaged in the wagering on the Glencairn Plate War Song and Watchful had most concern in the finish, and the former, who was backed freely from sixes down to 2 to 1, staying on the better, scored with a bit in hand, and at the ensuing auction was bought in for 250 sovs. That Ceylonese, who before coming into the possession of Mrs. Coombs, cost his English connections dear, has not mended his ways was made manifest by his display in the Stand Plate, in which he ran far from generously, and the outsider of three, Brave Colleen, came and beat her more fancied stable companion, Sed. Golden Street's failure in the Bray Steeplechase was yet another reverse for backers, as he proved unequal to the task of conceding close on 2st. to Noggin and Flying Laddie, the former of whom landed the spoils after a fine set-to. The favourite pecked slightly on landing over the last fence, but this had no bearing on the result. Details:—

3.0—THE PADDOCK PLATE of 100 sovs., of which the second receives 10 sovs., and the third 5 sovs. A handicap hurdle race. 1½ m.

Captain Maher's gr. h. PETIT BEAU, by Le Souvenir—Kimmage Beauty, a, 9-7 Jos. Canty 1
Major Gerrard's DIZIRA, 4, 10-0 ......T. Kelly 2
(Winner trained by M. Dawson.)

Betting—6 to 4 on Dizira.

At a slow pace Dizira made the running for half the journey, when Petit Beau went to the front, and, holding his own in a fine finish, won by half a length. Time—3 min. 22 2-5 secs.

3.30—THE SILVERPARK PLATE of 100 sovs., of which the second receives 10 sovs. and the third 5 sovs. A handicap. 7 f.

Mrs. R. Ross's br. f. CARRIF, by Duke of Brandon—Glynn, 4, 8-7 ......J. Moylan 1

Mr. A. M'Cann's Chicane, 3, 7-2 (car. 7-3) W. Treacy 0
(Winner trained by R. Moss.)

Betting—3 to 1 each agst. CARRIF and Oppressormore, 4 to 1 Maytoi, 8 to 1 each Brown Valentine and Ballyboley, 100 to 8 any other.

Ballyboley quickly drew clear and opened out a long lead from Oppressormore, Vesington Orb, Maytoi and Carrif, with Brown Valentine and Lomond's Lake last. So they ran for nearly six furlongs, when Ballyboley was beaten and Carrif took up the running, pursued by Oppressormore, Maytoi, Glimpse and Ezra, with Brown Valentine next. At the turn into the straight Maytoi became second, but could make no impression on Carrif, who won easily by four lengths; three-quarters of a length divided second and third. Ezra was fourth, Oppressormore fifth, Glimpse sixth and Vesington Orb seventh. Time—1 min. 35 secs.

4.0—FOXROCK PLATE of 200 sovs., of which the second receives 20 sovs. and the third 10 sovs. For two years old. 5 f.

May Pan Out was the first to show in front, followed by L'Aine, Lorient and Peacemaker, with Lord Wembley whipping-in. After going three furlongs Lorient headed May Pan Out and L'Aine, but the latter came again and won by a length and a half; three lengths between second and third. Peacemaker was fourth. Time—67 4-5 secs.

4.30—THE GLENCAIRN PLATE of 100 sovs., of which the second receives 10 sovs. and the third 5 sovs. For two years old. 5 f.

Betting.—6 to 4 agst. Watchful, 2 to 1 WAR SONG, 5 to 1 each Leemtee and Millbank, 10 to 1 Cross Courage, 20 to 1 Marks.

War Song was the quickest to begin, followed by Leemtee, Watchful and Millbank, with Cross Courage last, and there was no change in this order until two furlongs from home, when Watchful took second place, but War Song easily held her at bay and won by three lengths; three-quarters of a length separated second and third. Millbank was fourth, and Marks last. Time—70 secs. The winner was bought in for 230 sovs.

5.0—THE STAND PLATE of 100 sovs., of which the second receives 10 sovs., and the third 5 sovs. Weight for age, etc. 1 m.

Mr. P. Clarke's SED, 3, 7-7 ......J. Patman 2
Mrs. T. Coombs's CEYLONESE, 6, 9-8 Jos. Canty 3
(Winner trained by E. Fordred.)

Betting.—7 to 4 on Ceylonese, 2 to 1 agst. Sed, 10 to 1 BRAVE COLLEEN.

After going a couple of furlongs Ceylonese drew to the front, followed by Sed and Brave Colleen, and this was the order until a quarter of a mile from home, when Sed drew to the front, but failed to withstand the challenge of Brave Colleen, who won easily by five lengths; a neck between second and third. Time—1 min. 55 secs.

Flying Laddie settled down in front of Noggin and Golden Street, and this order was maintained for two and a half miles, when Noggin assumed command and won a good race by two lengths; two lengths and a half divided second and third. Time—7 mins. 21 2-5 secs.

THE MAZE

ALROI'S SECOND WIN.

DOUBLE FOR C. BRABAZON.

There was an improvement in the class of the sport at the Maze on Saturday, a remark which, unfortunately, did not apply to the weather, which was of the worst description imaginable. Rain set in before racing was resumed and poured down all the afternoon, while to make matters more unpleasant a piercingly cold wind swept the course.

Chief honours of the day again went to Mr. F. Barbour, whose Alroi followed up his smart win of the previous day by winning the Antrim Plate in almost easier style. This son of Santoi is apparently useful, and should credit his owner with many more stakes. Another race also fell to the Barbour-Brabazon combination when Gate Book, carrying Miss E. L. M. Barbour's colours, captured the Maralin Plate. Miss Barbour is a niece of Mr. Frank Barbour, and probably the youngest owner of a racehorse; she is still at school in the United States.

There was a very fine race for the Castlereagh Hurdle Race between Garrymore, Gleniden and Soot, the three contesting a long-drawn-out finish all the way up the straight, and it was, in the main, due to the fact of swerving that Gleniden had to be content with second place, Garrymore just lasting out long enough to gain a half-length victory.

Three of the seven runners for the Hillsborough Steeplechase refused when half the journey had been covered, and the race fell an easy prey to the comparative outsider, Linfield, ridden by Mr. M. Morrison. Westview, who shared favouritism with Mont Blanc, was one of the three put out of the race through refusing, but no excuse could be offered for Mont Blanc, who was well beaten.

Mr. F. Barbour's colours were again prominent for a long way in the Barbour Steeplechase on Rath-Luirc, but in a good finish the favourite, Grecian Wave, accounted for the son of Rhosmarket. The Lisburn Steeplechase was a tame affair, only Mariana II. and Irish Deer turning out for it, and the latter had an easy task. Details:—

1.45—THE CASTLEREAGH PLATE of 50 sovs. A handicap hurdle race. 1½ m.

Mr. J. P. Taaffe's b. g. GARRYMORE, by Glenesky—Miss Buttimore, a, 10-9 J. Banahan 1

(Winner trained by J. Banahan.)

Betting—2 to 1 on GARRYMORE, 5 to 1 agst. Soot, 6 to 1 Generic, 7 to 1 Mr. Porta, 10 to 1 any other.

Generic set the pace to Garrymore, Soot, Gleniden, and Mr. Porta, until half a mile from home, when Garrymore drew to the front, and, resisting the challenge of Gleniden and Soot, won by half a length; a similar distance divided second and third. Mr. Porta was fourth.

2.15—THE MARALIN PLATE of 50 sovs. Second receives 3 sovs. A flat race. 1½ m.

Goodwill made the running from Mont Blanc, Westview, Storm, Revol Mine, and Linfield, for half the journey, when Storm, Westview, and Goodwill refused. Linfield then drew into the lead, followed by Mont Blanc, and, making the remainder of the running, won by twenty lengths; six lengths divided second and third.

EDINBURGH.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

The only meeting down for decision under Jockey Club Rules to-day is Edinburgh. The best-endowed event is the Buccleuch Spring Handicap, in which the name of Mr. Bliss appears, but Mrs. Gardner's gelding will give this engagement a miss, in view of the City and Suburban. In Night Guard, however, J. Dawson can saddle a very efficient substitute, and one that should go very near to winning, as he was by no means disgraced when beaten by Canusa and Sandblast at Birmingham earlier in the month. Sir Greysteel has 2lb. more to carry than when finishing third to Haine and Cyzara at Newcastle, and the furlong less of this race should be all in favour of Bazley's charge. Orpi seems to have benefited as the result of being given a spell of hurdling during the winter, and his success at Liverpool points to his chance here, especially when it is borne in mind that Confirmation and Mandelieu, who finished second and third to him on that occasion, have both raised winning flags since. Miss Connie may be sent on from Catterick Bridge, where she was successful on Saturday, and if so would be dangerous, while there is also much to be said in favour of Ribblesdale, who won very easily over a mile and three furlongs at Lincoln. The two I like best, however, are Orpi and Night Guard, and I prefer them in the order named. Mocking Bird appears to have plenty of weight in the Inveresk Plate, and, while expecting to see Langside put up a bold bid for premier honours, I assign my vote to Fiddleback.

LONDON BETTING—SATURDAY.

Although, according to the many published reports that there was a doubt existing as to the running of Tapin for the City and Suburban, many Turf speculators early on Saturday anticipated the decision by deciding that the overnight layers of the Frenchman were wrong and that the backers were right. Early in the morning the offices in London and the provinces were inundated with inquiries for Tapin and Cockpit, Bartholomew's charge largely predominating, and this candidate has returned to his opening rate of 6 to 1, without any large investments being made. It will be interesting to await the market developments which are likely to take place this morning when the card will be called over at the Victoria Club. General money was invested on the remaining candidates quoted at their previous rates. Details:—

THE INTERNATIONAL.

ENGLAND'S TRIUMPH AT HOYLAKE.

A SWEEPING VICTORY.

By Our Special Correspondent.

The international match, in which an English team opposed a combination of Ireland and Wales, was played on the links of the Royal Liverpool Club, Hoylake, on Saturday, and resulted in a heavy defeat of the visitors, the Englishmen winning the foursomes in the forenoon by three matches to two, and the singles by eight matches to one, one match being halved.

It was a pity that Major Hazlet, Mr. Spiller and Dr. MacCormack were unable to play for Ireland. A strain, which the Irish open champion sustained in the final of the match last September at Dollymount, will keep him out of golf for a considerable time. Dr. MacCormack could not accept the invitation, and the death of Major Hezlet's father, of course, prevented him leading the team, as was intended. In the circumstances, and as there was no substitute with the Irishmen, another Welshman (David Brown) had to be brought in, and the captaincy entrusted to G. C. Stokoe, of the Royal St. David's Club.

While the result was disappointing for the combined team in the extent of the defeat, the showing of the side against what was admittedly a formidable team, was very creditable indeed, and if the match served no other purpose than to cement the friendly relations between the three countries which have been greatly enhanced as the result of the formation of the Advisory Committee, it was a fine thing for golf to bring it off. But it did a great deal more. It was the first time in the history of international golf matches that an English team had not been selected by the Committee of the Royal and Ancient Club, the English Union having chosen their own side for this match.

Incidentally, a matter which bears, in a sense, on the selection of international teams, and which, in fact, may have an important bearing on golf in the future, may be alluded to here. Subsequent to the conference at which the Advisory Committee was formed the announcement was made in a responsible golf publication that the Committee had been formed for the purpose of assisting the R. and A. in all matters concerning golf, which was an absolutely true statement. This year, in the same publication, the statement is made that the Committee was formed for the purpose of assisting the R. and A. to formulate a scheme for the fixing of scratch scores for courses and arranging a system of handicapping—which, needless to say, puts a different complexion on the whole position.

If the Committee were formed for no other reason and with no other object in view but to assist the St. Andrews body in the particular respects alluded to, then it has come to the end of its tether, for the scheme for the fixing of the scratch scores and the system of handicapping have been decided on by the joint bodies. But that is not so. The Advisory Committee, I have been authoritatively informed, was formed for the purpose of assisting the R. and A. in all matters affecting the game of golf. It would be premature to discuss the matter, but should any misunderstanding arise between the Advisory Committee and the Royal and Ancient as to the objects for which the former was instituted, and approved by the latter, there would likely be trouble between the two organisations, and incidentally the Unions of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, would be affected by it. But be that as it may, the fact remains that on this occasion the Royal and Ancient had nothing to do with the selection of the English team.

It was an ideal day for the playing of the match, for it was dry, with a fine, trying wind—just the sort of wind that makes the game so difficult at Hoylake. The foursomes resulted, as stated, in the home players taking a lead of one match. The English leaders, Tolley and Bretherton, had a very hard match against Stokoe and Brown. Tolley was the best golfer of the four, but he was by no means brilliant, and for the nonce seemed content to sacrifice length to accuracy, and was apparently playing well within himself. After an exchange of holes England won the third, fourth, sixth and seventh, and turned with a lead of three holes. It was, however, a fine finish, for although Tolley and his partner were four up and six to play the excellent putting of Stokoe enabled his side to bring the match to the eighteenth, where they were beaten by two holes.

The North of Ireland pair, Lowe and Stevenson, were very badly beaten by De Montmorency and Powell. The latter went ahead at once, winning the first three holes, and they held that lead at the turn, Stevenson having missed an eighteen inch putt at the sixth. De Montmorency played fine golf, and when the Englishmen won the tenth in four and the eleventh in three the result was a foregone conclusion, and the end came at the 14th, where the Irishmen were beaten by 6 and 4.

Howell and Fairchild were the first pair to win for the combined side, but meanwhile Chapman and Roy McConnell were having a great struggle with Hassall and Walker. The Royal Portrush player was on the top of his form, and his extreme steadiness and accuracy, especially on the greens, was a big factor in the success of the side. They took the lead at the first hole, to which the Ballymena man hit a fine tee shot dead on the line all the way, winning it in a perfect four. It was not till the fifth that the opposition squared, and it came about through Chapman, when playing a bunker shot, being struck by the ball. But at the next the mistake was retrieved, the hole being won by the Irishman and his partner in a 4, they being on the green in two good shots. McConnell was putting with the utmost deliberation and accuracy, and by holing a difficult one of three feet on the ninth, he placed the Englishmen in a deficit of 2. The lead was reduced at the tenth, the Englishmen winning it in 3 to 5, Chapman not being on the green, and McConnell pulling his shot; but a 3 at the eleventh, where the opposition were bunkered, put England once more 2 down. A lovely pitch by McConnell to the thirteenth gave his side a lead of 3, but they lost the sixteenth. They became dormy 2, and with Chapman pulling his second to the seventh, it looked as if the match would go to the last hole, for McConnell had a most difficult shot with the bunkers on the left of the green in the way, but he played a lovely pitch, which just escaped the hazard, and the hole was thus halved, and the match won.

The other match in which Ireland was primarily interested was that in which Walter Carroll and W. McConnell were beaten by J. Cannon and J. Beddard at the seventeenth. This was another fine match. The Irishmen, however had no luck on the greens, for on three occasions the ball was in the hole, only to come out again. They were 1 down at the turn, but Carroll missed a short putt at the tenth for the half. His partner got one back by ramming down a long one at the twelfth; but McConnell was confronted by a stymie at the thirteenth, and after cutting round it, he had the mortification of seeing the ball hit the back of the hole, and bounce out. Thus the Englishmen held a lead of 2 holes, and though they lost the fourteenth to a 4, they pulled the match off at the seventeenth, McConnell topping his drive to the sixteenth and his partner being almost out of bounds from a heavy lie for his second just over the bunkering in front of the teeing ground.

Tolley had a bit the best of the luck in the singles match with Stokoe. As a matter of fact, he played some very loose shots, which got him into trouble; but he recovered wonderfully well, notably at the eighth, where, from a sliced shot, he found a bad lie in the hollows. He played what looked to be a careless-and-gay pitch over the heads of the spectators, who had gone up to the green unaware that he was to the right, and a hole which he seemed on the point of losing he halved by holing the putt. Then at the ninth he was on the far side of the green with his second, after the second of his opponent had struck the pin and lay a few feet from the hole, but the English crack went for it with the long putt, and down it went for a 3. In the end he wore the stylish Welshman down, and won the match by 4 and 3—a score by which Bretherton beat Howell.

The most successful of the Irish players, and at the same time the sternest fighter in the side, was R. M'Connell, who is one of the few real hopes of Irish golf. He was mainly instrumental in winning one of the foursomes, halved his match with Hartley, and had very hard luck in not winning it at the seventeenth, to which he hit one of the most spectacular shots played during the day. He went into the lead early, being 2 up at the fifth, but Hartley had two good 4's at the eighth and ninth, and when they turned for home the Irishman was only 1 up. Two halves in 4's followed, and then a 3 at the twelfth gave M'Connell a lead of two. He was dormy one. To the seventeenth he was little the shorter from the drives, but on the same line as in the morning. The wind was dead against them, and M'Connell took his brassey. He went all out for the green, and a glorious shot left him a yard and a half to the right of the pin. Hartley, short with his second, was also timid with his third (a short run up), but he holed the long putt for 4, and the other's putt pulling up on the edge of the hole, a half was the result. M'Connell played a bad second to the last hole with a No. 4 iron, found the bunker on the right, and though he got well out he could only halve the hole and the match. It was, however, a very excellent performance on the part of the Irishman.

Lowe and De Montmorency had a capital match, but the better putting of the Englishman pulled him through. Lowe played almost his best golf, but his opponent was remarkably steady. They were square at the turn, and it was only at the twelfth that De Montmorency took the lead again. They halved the other holes to the seventeenth, which the Englishman won, for the match, but it would have been a much more interesting finish had Lowe holed his putts at the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth.

Beddard never gave Carroll a chance. The latter, following a fine tee shot to the first hole, put his second out of bounds. Beddard then went right ahead, winning the next three, and also the eighth and ninth, to turn 6 up. The Englishman's long game was altogether too good for the Dundalk player, who was well out-distanced with wood and iron, while on the greens Beddard gave nothing away. In fact, Carroll won only one hole, that being the eleventh, and he was beaten by 7 and 6.

Stevenson was, likewise, outclassed by Layton. On the way out he held his own well, and was only 2 down at the turn, but at the ninth, where he was on in 2, he required three putts. Layton then produced golf of the fireworks type, and when he was a winner at the fifteenth he held a five holes lead.

Walker, who is one of the local cracks, had a comparatively easy win over W. M'Connell. Always playing well within himself, he turned 2 up. It was, however, a very good match, but Walker's work on the greens was deadly accurate, and his play, generally so steady, and at times so brilliant, that he had no difficulty in winning by 3 and 2.

The results were:—

IRISH JUNIOR CUP.

DALKEY WIN EASILY.

By defeating Dunmurray (Belfast) at the Knox Hall, Monkstown, on Saturday, Dalkey won the All-Ireland Junior Badminton Cup, and won it, moreover, by the comfortable margin of six matches to two.

The Junior Cup, which was formerly a trophy confined to the clubs in Leinster, was put up for all Ireland competition three years ago, and went for the first time to the Elgin (Dublin) Club. Last year Wellington (Belfast) were the winners.

Dunmurray, who worked their way deservedly into the final this season, met a strong Junior team in Dalkey in the deciding round, and succeeded in winning only the events confined to men. The score, however, scarcely reflects the keenness with which the various events were contested, and the losing team have two formidable players in the brothers Turner.

The losers are a young team full of promise, and most of them will eventually work their way into Senior ranks. Dalkey were ably captained by T. G. Booth, who played a splendid game with Miss Goodman in the first mixed, and, although his service was a little uncertain, pulled the match out of the fire by sheer speed and clever placing.

At the close of the proceedings, Mr. J. P. Dillon, secretary of the Irish Badminton Union, apologised for the unavoidable absence of Mr. W. Saxon, the President, and congratulated the winners. Mrs. Evans formally presented the cup to the captain of the Dalkey team, Mr. T. G. Booth. Details:—

LONDON-BRIGHTON RELAY RACE

The London to Brighton relay race was won on Saturday by the Birchfield Harriers, whose time for the 53 miles 1,432 yards was 4 hours, 50 minutes 52 and 2-5 secs. There were seventeen clubs engaged, and of these all, except one, were Southern. The exception was in the case of the winners, who, successfully challenging from the Midlands, won by reason of fine tactics. Their management team was a very strong one, and its management was superb. In drizzling rain, C. E. Blewitt ran over the slippery tram lines and through the dense traffic of London roads. His task was manifest. He was out to establish a strong lead for his team, and so well did he succeed that by the time he had completed his section of 4 miles and 1,056 yards, the Birchfields were over a quarter of a mile to the good. The Midlanders, who followed Blewitt, merely consolidated the advantage which he had given them, and never pressed, they won very easily. Their time was nearly a minute slower than that in which the Surrey A.C. won last year, but this is not surprising, because they had matters so very much their own way.

One of the finest performances of the day was that of Corporal Cotterall, the National champion. His team of signallers was following behind when he took up the running from Merstham to Horley. In this section he passed three men, ran into second place and finished at Horley with a terrific sprint. Profiting from the force of a good example, his comrades held second place while Highgate challenged strongly, but ten miles from the finish the South London Harriers and the Surrey A.C. moved up and snatched the places from the Signallers.

J. W. Webster, who ran the final relay for Birchfield, was given a great reception. Tens of thousands of people saw him finish and for the last few miles he was hemmed in by cyclists. The plaudits were for him, but it was Blewitt, the man who gave him team that magnificent start at the beginning, who mostly deserved it.

THE LAST INTERNATIONAL.

WALES (0) v. IRELAND (0).

Neither Wales nor Ireland could score at Wrexham, and just as they shared the honours in the last International match of the season, so did they divide the barren distinction of being bracketed third in the International tournament, a happy way, perhaps, for each of them to avoid the wooden spoon. Scotland having won the Championship with three victories, just as Wales had done a year before, this game necessarily was wanting in general interest, and as a local attraction it fell below expectations, there not being more than 10,000 people on the racecourse ground. Nor did the play arouse much enthusiasm until the last twenty minutes, when Wales made desperate, but fruitless, efforts to gain the verdict. They should have forced a victory in this period, but the shooting for the most part lacked sting, and Scott and Rollo defended particularly well among a lot of sterling spoilers.

The Liverpool goalkeeper showed excellent powers of anticipation, and the backs covered him resolutely. Gray, in the Welsh goal, had comparatively little to do, and on the balance of play his side ought to have gone to a comfortable victory quite apart from their most marked superiority during the closing part of the game. Except during this period, the match was disappointing, and far below International standard. The Welsh backs often gave cause for anxiety in the opening minutes, but they settled down to play a convincing game, and the defence on both sides had much the better of the argument throughout the struggle. Gray's charge was never in real danger, but Scott once was fortunate to divert a hot shot from James Jones on to the cross-bar and to see another attempt by Stanley Davies hit an upright, whilst Len Davies lifted the ball just over the bar as Scott came out to smother the shot. Jesse Williams also missed by inches only in the closing minutes.

Wales were best served by their defenders, among whom Mouldsdale, the Corinthian, created a particularly good impression by his neat footwork, and Jenkins played confidently at full-back. The forwards did not shine until the second half, and then seemed to tire late in the second half, and the Irish front line was no better. O'Brien did well at centre-half for Ireland and Rollo was always the better of two smart full-backs; but, almost without exception, the players carried themselves with an end-of-season air, and the match, taken all round, ranked far below previous International matches played on the historic enclosure that used to be the scene of every Welsh home match.

The difficulty of getting together the teams was not solved until the morning of the match. Wales were fortunate to have three Cardiff City men, Len Davies having made a surprisingly good recovery from an injury that had threatened to keep him out of the field for the rest of the season.

When the game began, under favourable conditions, Keenor set a fine example to the Welshmen, and W. Davies earned applause for some pretty work that gave promise of clever attacks which never were fulfilled. The Irishmen showed some of their characteristic energy in some scrappy play, but the Welshmen were better in attack, thanks to the two extreme wing men. Yet Ireland's solid defence proved equal to all emergencies. Exciting incidents occurred very seldom, and most of them were near the Irish goal when the visiting defenders were repelling the Welsh wings. Gray did what work fell to him in smart style, and then, as the second half progressed Scott was kept more and more busy. A good many shots went towards the Irish goal with some power behind them, but, as already explained the visitors escaped disaster when the best efforts were made against them, and Ireland's rallies were little better than spasmodic raids. In fact, the play was ragged and disappointing from first to last, with very few features deserving praise. Teams:—

Wales—Gray (Oldham Athletic); Parry (Liverpool) and Jenkins (Brighton and Hove Albion); J. R. B. Mouldsdale (Corinthians), Keenor (Cardiff City) and John (Arsenal); W. Davies (Cardiff City), S. Davies (West Bromwich Albion), J. Jones (Wrexham), L. Davies (Cardiff City) and J. Williams (Middlesbrough).

Ireland—Scott (Liverpool); Rollo (Blackburn Rovers) and O'Connell (Reading); Garrett (Belfast Distillery), O'Brien (Hull City) and Irving (Dundee); Cowan (Queen's Island), Gallagher (Glasgow Celtic), Sloan (London Caledonians), Peek (County), A. F. Sloan (London Caledonians), Feek (Glentoran) and Wilson (Linfield).

SHAMROCK ROVERS' SUCCESS.

When they defeated Bohemians at Dalymount on Saturday in their Shield game, Shamrock Rovers practically added this trophy to their other successes of the season. The score of 2-1 in their favour was close, but it in no wise reflects the easiness of their victory. By their win they have established a record, inasmuch as they have gone through all the principal competitions without meeting with a reverse. Before Saturday's game Bohemians were leading them in the Shield table by a single point, which meant that a division would suffice to give the Dalymount side the trophy, but though they had none of the luck, they never flattered their most ardent supporters, and were a beaten side all through the game.

Bohemians, with a view to improving on recent displays, rearranged their attack, McIlroy coming up from centre half-back to right wing to partner Rodgers of the B team, vice Kelly and Roberts, the latter acting as pivot, Brooks operating at inside left, vice Willitts. From the start it was apparent that this formation was a complete failure, as not once during the whole game did the line play with anything like confidence, and it would have been to the greater advantage of the team had a rearrangement been made in the second period. There were periods when the good work of the half-backs gave opportunities for the forwards, but the latter were usually at sixes and sevens. On the right Wing McIlroy was ineffective, and seldom, if ever, justified his change. Had Otto and he changed places for the second half things might have been different and more stability established in the line. Neither in the open nor close play did the home side play with any confidence and near goal their failure was complete. With his usual good judgment, Murray, on the left wing, got the ball across well on the few occasions when he got going, but he was not used to advantage, and the play almost always favoured the other wing. The backs were, as usual, sound, but the couple of bad mistakes which Cannon made in the goal made Rovers a present of two valuable goals, and incidentally the Shield.

Rovers, on the other hand, played consistently good football all through, though they did nothing brilliant. Like Bohemians they had to find a substitute for Fagan on the right wing, O'Brien filling the gap. The latter played well and was invariably effective with his passes and centres, and proved no weakness to a very good forward line, which played to advantage all through. Whether in defence or attack, the winners were superior, all the departments playing with that thorough understanding which proved the success of their season. The team play was good, and the shooting usually to the point, Cannon, in the Bohemian goal, saving some smart shots, and, to some extent, making amends for the mistakes mentioned, and incidentally saving his side from a severer defeat.

With the strong wind and fall of the ground in their favour, Bohemians started well, Reilly being called on twice in succession to stop shots from Brooks and Roberts in the opening minutes of play. Kirkland, with a good kick, let his side away, Doyle opening out well to O'Brien, who dribbled to the home end, where McCarthy had to kick to touch for safety. Another Bohemian effort met with no success, and Rovers, rushing back, McCarthy tipped the ball to Cannon to clear, but the latter, making a mistake, let it roll out for a corner. Jordan placed the flag kick across the goal, and Flood passed it on to Farrell to score an easy goal after ten minutes' play. This wakened up Bohemians to some extent, and a hot attack on the Rovers goal ensued, when Malone fouled Brooks in the penalty area, and Roberts scored from the place kick to level up inside a further eight minutes. Rovers continued to have the better of the exchanges, and after Kirkland had cleared a couple of home rushes, O'Brien and Fullam worked up the wing, and the latter put across what was intended for a centre, but the wind curled the ball back, and Cannon, thinking it was going out, made no effort to clear. It hit an upright, however, and went into the net for Rovers' lead and game.

The second half was mostly fought out in the home end, but there was no further scoring, the Bohemian defence holding out well.

GOULDING CUP—FINAL.

G.S. AND W. RAILWAY (8) V. I.R.C. HOUSE (3).

Great Southern and Western Railway retained possession of the Goulding Cup by defeating Irish Railway Clearing House at Park avenue on Saturday by 2 goals (1 penalty) (8 points) to 1 try (3 points). For the greater portion of the time it was a contest between the rival forwards, and an uninteresting one at that. The back play on both sides was of a very poor order, the passing being wild and the handling bad. G. S. and W. Railway had much the better of the play throughout, and thoroughly deserved their victory. Their forwards were superior, both in the tight and loose, while in the little back play there was the winners held the pull.

Williams, Thompson, Hennessy, Flanagan (backs), and Brunner, Kennafick and McGuire (forwards) were the most noticeable players on the Railway side. For Clearing House none played better than Cunningham, J. O'Connor, W. O'Connor, Dunne, Keane, McCorry, Scully and Browner.

Great Southern monopolised the play in the opening half, but failed to break through a strong defence by Clearing House. Nearing the interval, however, a free to the Railway found Flanagan landing a goal.

The second period was strenuously contested, both sides having strong spells of attack. Midway through a break-away by the Clearing House forwards brought play close to the Great Southern line, and McCorry picking up went over for a try, which W. O'Connor failed to convert. The Railway men put up a strong pressure after this, and Flanagan wound up a good run by scoring a try, which he converted. Result:—

G. S. and W. Railway 2 goals (1 penalty) (8 points).
I. R. C. House......... 1 try (3 points).

The teams were:—

G. S. and W. Railway—Williams; Thompson, Mullins, Hennessy, Banks; King, Flanagan; Brunner, Maher, McGuire, Kennafick, Curneen, O'Farrell, Somers, Johnstone.

I. R. C. House—Cunningham; J. O'Connor, W. O'Connor, Watchorn, Dunne; Doran, Keane; Cullen, O'Beirne, Shortt, Browner, McCorry, Scully, Fitzsimmons, Glynn.

Referee—Mr. R. W. Hart.

Mr. J. Richardson, Secretary, Irish Railway Clearing House, presented the Cup.

MUNSTER SENIOR CUP.

Another win for Garryowen by a 3-points victory over Dolphin, Cork, at the Markets Field, Limerick, on Saturday. Garryowen retained the Munster Senior Cup for another year. The match could only be described as poor, the play being scrappy and irregular, and confined chiefly to the forwards. Garryowen were decidedly lucky, while Dolphin, who had, undoubtedly, the better of the play, were unfortunate.

They beat Garryowen for possession, but lacked scoring ability. Although playing against a strong wind and rain in the first half, they put up a fine defence, and it was in this half that Hegarty landed Garryowen's penalty from a difficult angle.

In the second half the Corkmen practically monopolised the play, Garryowen being rarely dangerous. Mid-way Dolphin got over the line, but the score was disallowed and the scrummage ordered outside. It was a hard game, but devoid of anything like spectacular football. Result:—

Garryowen—1 penalty goal (3 points).
Dolphin—Nil.

ULSTER SENIOR CUP.

QUEEN'S-INSTONIANS FINAL ABANDONED.

Owing to the heavy downpour on Saturday, the Ulster Senior Cup final, between Queen's University and Instonians, at Ravenhill, was abandoned after half an hour's play. At this stage Queen's were leading, having the advantage of the wind, by two tries to nil. The scorers were Tom Hewitt and Caruth.

CITY AND SUBURBAN TRIAL.

MINOR CUP—REPLAY.

RAILWAY UNION III. "A" (2) v. DUBLIN UNIVERSITY III. (1).

Railway Union III. A. won the replay against Dublin University III., at Park avenue on Saturday, by the odd goal in three after an uninteresting game. The home team deserved their win, having most of the game in the first half, and were also more aggressive in the second, although at times the visitors attacked strongly, and had hard luck in not scoring. Dublin University were first to attack, but the defence was too good, and after about fifteen minutes' play Hoey opened the scoring for R. and S.P.U., following a good individual effort. Shortly after the resumption Connor put his side further ahead. Trinity then made strong efforts to pull the game out of the fire, but were unable to score until, just on full time, Irvine got through and reduced the lead.

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE—A.

KINGSTOWN G.S. II. (2) v. AVOCA SCHOOL (2).

This Intermediate League match was played at Park avenue immediately after the Minor Cup final, and an excellent game ensued. There was very little between the two teams, and the score stood at 2-2 at full time; extra time was played, with no further change in the score.

From start to finish it was a ding-dong battle. Kingstown were the first to score, L. Varian netting with a fast shot from a pass from J. Fulton. Avoca retaliated immediately, and J. O. B. Mitchell equalised following a corner. From this on till the interval both goals were visited without result. Play was very keen in the second period, and after twenty minutes Fulton put his side ahead with a fast, rising shot. Ten minutes later R. S. Darling equalised, and at the final whistle there was no further score. Extra time was played, but the score remained unchanged.

Avoca School deserve great credit for the display they gave, many of their team being very young in comparison with their more seasoned opponents. C. Lea, in goal for Avoca, was sound. Mitchell, D. Conison and L. S. Phillips were safe in defence, while G. H. Alleyne, A. D. Sarratt and R. S. Darling were prominent in attack. J. C. Rutherford, G. Moore, Fulton and Varian were the pick of the Kingstown side.

The match will be replayed this afternoon at Park avenue, starting at 5.30 p.m.

TO-DAY'S FIXTURE.

BOXING.

JACK PHŒNIX BEATEN AT ROTUNDA.

There was a comparatively short programme staged at the usual fortnightly tournament at the Rotunda on Saturday night, but much of the boxing was of an interesting nature.

One of the best and keenest professional contests seen in Dublin for some years was that between Battling Branagan, of Waterford, and Bob Miller, of Liverpool, which went the full distance, and ended in a draw. Both men are clever boxers, and fought a splendidly clean fight. Branagan had all the better of the earlier rounds, but Miller stuck it out gamely, and was making up arrears at the finish.

A bout of a different order was that between Jack Phœnix and Jim M'Donald, of Manchester. Phœnix, who at first was rather inclined to underrate his opponent, was frankly outfought, and lost to a better man by a comfortable margin of points. M'Donald knew, as did Phœnix, that the Dublin man's only chance of a win lay in a knock-out, and he took care that Phœnix got little or no chance to bring over his powerful right. Details:—

TEN (3-MINUTE) ROUNDS.

Jim M'Donald (Manchester) beat Jack Phœnix (Dublin) on points.

Battling Branagan (Waterford) and Bob Miller (Liverpool) fought a draw.

TEN (2-MINUTE) ROUNDS.

Frank McAloran (Belfast) beat Marty Brown (Dublin). The referee stopped the contest.

SIX (2-MINUTE) ROUNDS.

Young Derham (Dublin) beat Young McGuiness (Dublin) on points.

BILLIARDS.

THE PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Newman must look to the ultimate result of his 16,000 championship match against Reece, at Burroughes Hall, London, with some confidence, for he was no fewer than 1,325 points ahead after the first week's play. The champion's progress was unchecked during Saturday's play. In the afternoon he aggregated 649 to the challenger's 320. The chief breaks were 441, 193, and 116 (unfinished) by Newman, and 94 and 190 by Reece. Interval scores:—Newman (in play), 7,335; Reece, 6,317.

The champion increased his lead to more than 1,300 at night, making breaks of 180, 107, 202, 103, and 152 (unfinished). Reece's principal run was 180. Closing scores:—Newman (in play), 8,002; Reece, 6,677.

Telegraphing from Egypt on Saturday, the Hon. Cecil Campbell stated that he hoped to be on leave next month, and would be available to play in the Davis Cup tie at Vienna.

HANDBALL.

G.A.A. CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Three matches were played in Marshlea Lane ball court yesterday in the G.A.A. Championships, and it was not until after four o'clock that the third had concluded, notwithstanding that, as soon as one pair had concluded, two more were ready to go into the court.

The first match was in the semi-final of the junior soft ball championship between P. Scanlan, Eire Og (senior soft ball champion of the Army), and J. Keeveney, Eire Og (who, with P. Lyons, holds the double-handed title). The Army men showed good form right through the competition, and from the time they were unlucky enough to be drawn against each other the match was looked forward to, as all knew it would be a good contest. This it turned out to be. Keeveney took an early lead, and won the first game by 21-8. In the second game Scanlan warmed to his work, and a ding dong contest took place, Scanlan winning by 21-14. Starting on level terms for the final game, both fought hard for a lead, and by long exchanges tried to wear each other down. The result was that the spectators were given a good exhibition of ball playing, in which there was plenty of nice, clean hitting. Scanlan took the lead, but Keeveney fought for every ace, but all in vain, as Scanlan won by 21-13 and the rubber by 8-21, 21-14, 21-13.

The second rubber was in the same competition. The players were W. Duncan (Clontarf) and P. Kenneally (D.M.P.). The match opened very fast, and good tossing, returning, and killing took place. After a number of hands the play was called 4 all, Kenneally by good, robust play went ahead, and took a lead of 9-6, when a butt of Duncan's put him out. A very strong return let Kenneally back, but after he made one Duncan got in, and went to 8. Kenneally continued at a very fast pace, driving back very strong, and holding the hand until he was 13, when Duncan had a maiden innings. Kenneally, going all out by his strong play, continued to have the best of matters, winning by 21-8. In the second game so keen was the play that three hands went before an ace was scored, this being gained by Fetherstone. Muffing at a lob lost him the hand. He got back without Kenneally scoring. After the D.M.P. man had made one, good, strong play took place, the Clontarf man going to 4. A cut into the corner got him back, and he soon had the score 10-2. Several hands now went for "love." Strong tossing and returning brought Kenneally to 5. Keen play followed, and three hands went for "love." Kenneally had reached 9, when a deceiving ball beat him. Duncan, with nice tossing and returning, went to 14, when a strongly kicked ball beat him. He got back immediately, and by good all round play reached 19, when a clever back-hand stroke beat him. Cutting the ball into the right corner let Duncan back, and he finished the game by 21-9.

From the start of the final game, Duncan changed his tactics, and every return Kenneally sent back Duncan buried, and, playing consistently, he put up the score 9-0 in his favour. Playing a cool game, he went to 13, and a return he sent into the left, but Kenneally got on to and finished the hand. The D.M.P. man was at 3 when a long return beat him. Duncan's play was masterful, and he kept piling up the aces. He was very good at long butts and angle cuts. Some of the exchanges were very hot, but Duncan continued to have the best of matters, winning by 21-4, and the rubber by 8-21, 21-14, 21-13.

The final match of the day was in the first round of the Senior Soft Ball Championship, between L. Slicker (St. Audoen's) and J. Clarke (Metropolitans). Although handicapped by years, Clarke, who was in good form, sent out a very strong service, and some of his returns had Slicker running out very often. His killing was also good, and four games had to be played before Slicker gained the victory. The last game was a very closely contested one. Clarke took the lead for the first half of the game, but the scores were equal at 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. At this period Slicker got away and won by 21-18, and the rubber by 21-11, 12-21, 21-2, 21-18.

In Clondalkin T. Carroll (Clontarf) qualified for the fifth round of the G.A.A. Dublin Junior Hardball Championship by defeating G. Flynn (Clondalkin Round Towers) two games to nil. The Clontarf player had the first game safe from the outset, winning 21-9, but the second was more stubbornly contested. Both were playing a good, fast game, and the scoring was even to 11-all, when Flynn went to 15. Carroll, by good tossing to the right, reached 14, when he failed to kill the return. The Clondalkin player reached game-ball in his next hand, when Carroll had him beaten by a fast return. The latter tossed and played very coolly, and had "game-ball all" called when he was out by missing to pick up a kill. Flynn was out, however, without a score, as the Clontarf player, from the toss, drove strong to the left. A kill from the return gave him the game by 21-20, and the rubber by 21-9, 21-20.

In the afternoon a number of challenge matches took place between members of the I.A.H.U. In the opening match, M. Daly (Ashtown) beat J. Grant (G.S.W.R.) by 15-21, 20-21, 21-18, 21-6, 21-11.

R. Mulligan (Clondalkin) beat T. Soye (G.S.W.R.)—17-21, 21-17, 21-0, 21-20, 21-9.

MOTOR CYCLING.

MOTOR CYCLE UNION CONFERENCE.

The annual conference of the Motor Cycle Union of Ireland was held on Saturday last at Belfast, when various matters relating to the national championships and the general conduct of the affairs of the Union were under consideration, and also the relations of the Union with the governing body of the sport in England. Mr. D. A. Boyd, the outgoing President, took the chair at the beginning of the meeting. The delegates representing the Ulster Centre were Messrs. R. McLardy, W. J. Chambers, and S. Wallace, in addition to the Chairman; and the Southern Centre was represented by Messrs. E. F. Keatinge (President), G. V. B. Cooke (hon. sec.), P. Grimes and T. W. Murphy.

Before the formal business of the conference commenced, Mr. Boyd proposed a vote of condolence with the family and relatives of the late Mr. James Stewart, whose recent death was the cause of widespread regret in motor cycling circles in Ulster. Advantage was taken of the occasion to present to the Ulster Motor Cycle Club the trophy for which the motor cycle traders of the North recently subscribed, and which was won by the team representing the Ulster Club in the St. Stephen's Day trial.

Mr. E. F. Keatinge was elected President of the Union for the coming year, and, having taken the chair, briefly thanked the conference for the honour conferred on him. Mr. G. V. B. Cooke was elected Hon. Sec. The conference then took up the consideration of the matters relating to the national championships, and, at the suggestion of the Ulster delegates, a new championship at seventy-five miles was created. The mile championship was dropped, and the distances of the events will, therefore, be five, ten, twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five and one hundred miles. The three last-named events were allocated to the Ulster Centre, and will be decided at Magilligan; while the five, ten, and twenty-five miles championships were allocated to the Southern Centre. The twenty-five miles will be run in the Phœnix Park, under the auspices of the Leinster Club and the ten miles at Portmarnock by the Dublin and District M.C.C. The suggestion of the Ulster Centre, that this year's championships should be run in four classes, not exceeding 250 c.c., 251 to 350 c.c., 351 to 600 c.c., and over 600 c.c. was adopted, and, in addition, there will be a sidecar championship, limited as to capacity, at each distance. It was agreed that the method of starting the championships should be from a standing start, but in exceptional circumstances the centre in whose jurisdiction the event is held may vary the method, with the consent of the Championships Sub-Committee. This Committee, which is charged with the conduct of all matters relating to the championships, including the hearing of appeals relating thereto, was constituted by the election of Messrs. R. McLardy, S. Wallace, G. V. B. Cooke and T. W. Murphy.

The relations of the Union with the Auto-Cycle Union of England was the subject of a lengthy discussion, on a letter from the A.C.U. suggesting that the Irish Union should become affiliated to it. In the end the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—"That this annual conference of the Motor Cycle Union of Ireland records its astonishment and regret that the Auto-Cycle Union has embodied in its rules a provision for the affiliation of 'national clubs . . . controlling the sport of motor cycling in Scotland, Northern Ireland, or any of the British Dominions and the Dependencies overseas,' thereby, by inference, claiming a jurisdiction over the government of the sport in Ireland, notwithstanding the fact that the Auto-Cycle Union has, by direct agreement, recognised the Motor Cycling Union as the governing body of the sport in Ireland; and, while welcoming closer relations with the A.C.U., this conference asserts its position as an independent governing body, and declines to entertain the suggestion that the Motor Cycle Union should become affiliated to the Auto-Cycle Union."

The conference endorsed the invitation of the Ulster Centre to the Dublin and District Club to run its twenty-four hours' trial to Donegal and back through Northern Ireland.

It was agreed to hold this year's Inter-Centre contest under the jurisdiction of the Ulster Centre, it being left to the body to decide whether the event should be held in connection with a reliability trial or a speed event.

BRITISH HARD COURT CHAMPIONSHIPS

The British Hard Court Championships were duly concluded on Saturday at Torquay, despite the loss of a whole day's play early in the week, due to a heavy downpour. In the Men's Singles, C. H. Kingsley failed to make any real impression on P. D. B. Spence, who won in straight sets with something to spare.

Miss Joan Fry put up a good fight against Miss Ryan, holder of the ladies' title, but was outplayed. Miss Ryan was right on her game, and Miss Fry made the mistake of going to the net on a weak return. Details:—

Men's Singles (final)—P. D. B. Spence beat C. H. Kingsley—6-1, 6-4, 6-7.

Ladies' Singles (final)—Miss Ryan beat Miss J. Fry—6-2, 6-2.

Ladies' Doubles (final)—Miss Ryan and Miss Colyer beat Miss P. M. Radcliffe and Miss N. Q. Radcliffe Platt—6-1, 6-3.

Men's Doubles (final)—Captain H. S. L. Barclay and C. H. Kingsley beat H. K. Lester and J. H. Van Alen—6-1, 4-7, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

Mixed Doubles (final)—P. D. B. Spence and Miss E. L. Colyer beat J. J. Lezard and Miss J. Fry—3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

M. Wing was twice successful in the saddle at Leopardstown on Saturday.

R. James, the English jockey, will have some mounts at the Curragh on Wednesday.

Ted, "Kidd," Lewis left Liverpool on the White Star liner, Baltic, yesterday for the United States.

Bright Maid, who holds a liability in the Irish 1,000 Guineas, to be run at the Curragh on Wednesday, reached Dublin on Saturday from Newmarket.

The betting on the Farmers' Race at Down Royal meeting on Friday was as follow:—5 to 4 on Defiant, 5 to 4 against Tarragona, and 10 to 1 against Rexhill.

The following trial took place on the Limekilns trial ground at Newmarket on Saturday:—Conquistador (Hewitt), 1; Grandpre (Weston), 2; Palma Bay (Jameson), 3. Distance 7f. Won by two lengths; same.

The Australian jockey, Dempsey, who has been riding with such great success, could not fulfil his engagements at Alexandra Park on Saturday owing to an attack of influenza while at Catterick Bridge races.

The Lancashire Steeplechase winner, Knight of the Wilderness, and Clonsheever, who finished third in that race, arrived in Dublin on Saturday by the L.M.S. boat from Holyhead. Ugly Duckling, who also won a race at the Manchester meeting, and Duleek, travelled by the same steamer.

Excellent entries have been received for to-day's jumping competitions at Athy, which commence at 3 o'clock. The teams entered for the inter-Hunt contest include the Kildare, Carlow, Ward and Queen's Co. Hounds and the Naas Harriers. There are thirty entries for the Ladies' Cup and forty for the Open Sweepstakes.

In view of the reports favourable to Coramond for the City and Suburban, the scratching of Mr. Ioannou's horse from the race at 1.12 p.m. on Friday comes as a general surprise. The colt remains in the Kempton Park Great "Jubilee" Handicap, in which his weight is 7st. 13lb.

After two days' absence from morning exercise, Earl's "Jubilee" Stakes' candidate, Polyphontes, was brought out for a gallop at Newmarket on Saturday morning. Ridden by his trainer, Polyphontes was accompanied by the City and Suburban candidate, Evander (Wragg) and Green Fire (Burns), and the trio were given a rattling pace gallop of a mile and a quarter. Polyphontes and Evander gave every satisfaction.

Prior to the commencement of racing at Alexandra Park on Saturday a presentation was made by the members of the Press room to Mr. Charles G. Green. The presentation, which was intended to mark Mr. Green's retirement as a travelling Press representative, consisted of a silver salver, a silver tea and coffee service for Mrs. Green, and a cheque. Mr. Green entered upon his journalistic career in connection with racing in 1882.

Directly after racing had concluded at Alexandra Park on Saturday, Donoghue left by aeroplane for France. He will return to-day. It is understood that he will have an interview with M. Ekmayan, the owner of Tapin, at which it will be decided whether the horse is to run in the City and Suburban or not. Present indications are that Tapin will be started, for there were many inquiries for him at the principal starting price offices in the country on Saturday, and he is now favourite again at six to one.

GAELIC GAMES.

GUARDS AND D.M.P. WIN.

(BY PAT'O.)

Parnell Park has been the venue of most important matches for some months. The re-opening of Croke Park on Sunday next will [illegible] some of the attractions from the Malahide road ground, which is a very enjoyable trysting place for Gaelic players in bright weather. The sun shone brightly yesterday, and we were treated to very spirited games in the Senior League.

Civic Guards, who visited Kilkenny last week and won a great game against the local side, [illegible] St. Kevins [illegible] was anticipated. They were without Howard and Ryan, but [illegible] at full strength, and though playing against a stiff breeze held out well against the Guards' early attacks. Carroll and McMahon brought off many fine clearances before Smith goaled for the Guards. Then the Conroy brothers from Leix went to the front, [illegible] William slashed a goal through, and John supplemented it with a fine point from far out. St. Kevins battled pluckily, Kavanagh, Riordan and O'Reilly put in some clever overhead work before Bray found the net with a fast shot. The Guards held the mastery to half-way, scoring another point per Cahill and Conroy. Half-time:—

Civic Guards—3 goals 3 points.
St. Kevins—1 goal.

Using a following wind well in the second half, Kevins combined very cleverly, and the Guardsmen had a busy time in saving their posts. They had a very sound line of defence. Burke, in goal, was a great success, and [illegible] out. The All-Ireland hurlers, Tobin and McSherry, were very cool and capable, hitting out freely and accurately. Bray, for Kevins, is a fast, ready hitter, and he had hard luck with two successive shots. Then Kavanagh crossed a fast ball to him, and he shot it on the drop, goaling it with a lightning stroke. It was good hurling now. A baneful habit of attempting to pick up interfered with Kevin's chances. This is a result of easy matches in the junior grades. Lifting is bad policy in senior hurling, where fast ground is an impossible barrier. The Guards had an innings near the end. From a clever clearance of Burke's, Doherty got away and scored a point. Kevins were defending. Carroll cleared twice, but the Guardsmen returned with great dash, and [illegible] The Guards' match for the final of the 1924 League [illegible] is fixed for May, and ought provide a thrilling game. Final score:—

Civic Guards—4 goals 3 points.
St. Kevins—2 goals 3 points.

The Ballybrack O'Dwyers, another promoted team, are a very light team, and depend on nippy footwork to balance their want of weight. They were matched with the D.M.P. men yesterday, and [illegible]

Kirwan led the D.M.P., and his reappearance was very successful. [illegible] With the wind behind them, D.M.P. were frequently in attack at first. A certain want of finish before goal was apparent, and point after point went abegging. [illegible]

D.M.P.—2 points.
O'Dwyers—Nil.

[illegible]

D.M.P.—5 points.
O'Dwyers—3 points.

Mr. Sean O'Neill, of Kickhams, had charge of both games.

LEINSTER HURLING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Leinster Hurling Championships, 1925. Senior and Junior, First Round, came off at Tullamore on Sunday—Senior, Kilkenny and Leix, and Junior, Kildare and Leix.

The weather which broke on Saturday night continued throughout yesterday, but somewhat abated about mid-day, and gentle sunshine improved matters.

The senior hurling display was in some respects disappointing. [illegible]
